NASHVILLE – The state's fiscal year continues its trend of negative tax revenue growth, with tax collections falling below budgeted estimates again in December. Finance and Administration Commissioner Dave Goetz announced that state revenue collections for December – reflecting November retail sales activity – were $766.7 million, which is $54.2 million less than the state budgeted.

"December tax collections represent the 19th consecutive month of negative sales tax growth," Goetz said. "At the end of the fiscal year, on June 30, we'll have to adjust for any under collection in the current fiscal year, and make sure our budget for fiscal year 2010-2011 reflects the revenue base available moving forward."

On an accrual basis, December is the fifth month in the 2009-2010 fiscal year.
