domestic violence assault and possession of a handgun while under the influence just before 2:30 AM. According to records, Deputy Jason Goddard, LCSO and Officer Bennie Houser, LPD, responded to Marlow's residence just before 1:00 AM where they found two men outside. The deputy interviewed one of the men while the officer interviewed the other, who was identified as Marlow. Deputy Goddard reported the man he spoke with advised he had not been involved in the dispute, but had tried to intervene between the couple. The said when patrol units arrived Marlow sated, "Here they come," then threw something in the bed of his pickup truck.

The lawman reported he checked the truck and found a black, .380 Kel-Tec handgun in the bed.

Upon interviewing witnesses, the victim's mother told police she saw Marlow pull a gun and her daughter and threaten to shoot her. Another woman said Marlow had also thrown a beer bottle through the dining-room window and an inspection revealed a hole in the window, and broken glass scattered both inside and outside the window. A beer bottle was lying with the shattered glass outside the window.

Records indicate the victim would give little information about what had occurred due to the statements of the witnesses.

Marlow reportedly told lawmen he'd had the gun in his pocket and when he and the victim got into an argument he threw it in the bed of his truck. He had a very strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from his breath and upon admitting to having a gun in his pocket he received the weapons charge.

Bahr son, LPD was notified by the 911 Center of a physical domestic that had just occurred on Lee Highway. The 911 Center advised the assailant was Ken Bahr and he left in a blue GMC pickup, possibly headed to the 1st Tennessee Bank on Mulberry Street and was possibly intoxicated.

Officer Harrison saw a Blue GMC at the 1st Tennessee Bank ATM with it's lights off. He stopped the truck on Mulberry Street and identified the driver as Kenyon Bahr. There was a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from inside the truck.

Mr. Bahr reportedly admitted to having a domestic dispute with his wife and advised he had a couple of 'straight' drinks of Jim Beam. He also had a plain pill bottle on his person that contained 18 pills, identified as xanax.

Bahr had a very strong odor of an alcoholic beverage about his person and breath, bloodshot eyes, slurred speech and was unsteady on his feet.

Mr. Bahr performed poorly on field sobriety tasks and was placed under arrest.

Once at the jail, Mr. Bahr consented to a breath test to determine the alcoholic content of his blood and the result was .12%.

FBI

Part 1 focused on terrorism cases. This segment highlights some of the year's top cases from the FBI's other investigative priorities:

Espionage: In November, a former State Department official and his wife pled guilty to a 30-year conspiracy to provide classified military information to Cuba. (Preventing and exposing intelligence activities—spying—on U.S. soil remains one of the Bureau's top investigative priorities because it strikes at the heart of national security.)

Cyber heist: Also in November, four hackers were charged with masterminding the simultaneous theft of $9 million from 2,100 ATMs from around the world. They did it all in 12 hours, illustrating the global reach—and threat—of cyber crime. (The arrests illustrated the importance of global law enforcement partnerships.)

Public corruption: In August, former Louisiana Congressman William J. Jefferson was convicted of bribery, racketeering, and money laundering. In November, a federal judge sentenced the 62-year-old to 13 years in prison and ordered him to forfeit more than $470,000.

Operation Phish Phry: Nearly 100 people were charged in the U.S. and Egypt in October in one the largest cyber fraud phishing cases to date. The defendants targeted U.S. banks and victimized hundreds and possibly thousands of account holders by stealing their financial information and using it to transfer money to bogus accounts.

Operation Cross Country: As part of the FBI's Innocence Lost National Initiative, 100 children victimized through prostitution were recovered in two separate multi-city sweeps. More than 1,200 individuals—including 60 pimps—were arrested on state and local charges.

Operation Knock Out: The nation's largest gang investigation and prosecution underscored the growing gang problem in the U.S. and the negative impact gangs have on communities. The Los Angeles investigation involved more than 1,400 officers from more than 40 federal, state, and local agencies. By October, some 200 defendants had been indicted, and the case continues.

Pfizer fraud: In the largest health care fraud settlement in Department of Justice history, the pharmaceutical giant agreed in September to pay $2.3 billion to resolve charges of illegal and fraudulent promotion of its products.

Large-scale corruption: In July, 44 prominent political and religious leaders—including mayors, assemblymen, and rabbis from New Jersey and New York—were arrested in an early morning sweep and charged with political corruption and high-volume international money laundering.

Bernard Madoff: In March, the financier pled guilty to multiple counts of fraud and money laundering after bilking his clients out of billions of dollars. In June, the 71-year-old was sentenced to 150 years in prison and ordered to forfeit more than $170 billion to the government. D

Mortgage fraud: In April, indictments were announced in connection with the "Dream Homes Program." The program promised to pay homeowners' mortgages in return for an upfront fee that would be invested in profitable business ventures but turned into a $70 million nightmare for more than 1,000 investors.
