Berry Matthew Chad Berry, 27, Loudon Ridge Road, Loudon was charged Wednesday with possession of schedule IV.

with possession of schedule IV.

According to records, Mr. Berry was a passenger of a vehicle in a traffic stop on Ford Road and Town Creek Road.

During a search of his person, a cellophane package was found in his sock, containing 13 white oval pills identified as alprazolam.

Deputy Chris Bowen, LCSO made the arrest. Sgt. Billy Hall was also on scene.

Licenses

the Type 23 License is $10.50. The Resident

1-Day Fishing License (no trout) remains $5.

Fishing licenses for nonresidents have been added. A Type 82 Nonresident 1-Day Fishing (no trout) License can be purchased for $7.50. A Type 83 nonresident 1-Day All-Fish License is $15.50. The Type 97 Nonresident 1-Day Gatlinburg Trout permit has been changed to Resident or Nonresident 1-Day Gatlinburg Trout License. The cost of the license is $11.

The new options offer resident and nonresident anglers cheaper alternatives for one-day trout trips. For example, two licenses (License types 23 and 97) will allow residents to trout fish for one day without buying an annual trout license.

In addition to the angler licenses, a pair of junior hunting licenses have been added for nonresidents. A Type 85 Nonresident 7-Day Junior All Game License is $24.50 and a Type 86 Nonresident Junior All Game Annual License is $39.

Fishing and hunting licenses may be purchased at any TWRA regional office, online at the TWRA website (www.tnwildlife.org) or at any of the hundreds of license agents located across the state. Please note that licenses purchased at license agents are subject to a fee.

Police Beat

Pamela S. Lawrence, 24, Grayson Freeman Lane, Lenoir City was charged Wednesday with domestic violence.

According to reports, Patrolman Jeremy Dishner, LCPD was dispatched to a disturbance at a residence on Grayson Freeman Lane. Upon arrival, the officer made contact with Lawrence and a male, who advised an argument started over some ongoing problems and during the verbal altercation, Pamela struck him in the head and ripped his shirt.

The man reportedly had a large knot on his forehead near his hairline. Pamela Lawrence was determined to be the primary aggressor and was arrested.

Takedown

corruption case in the FBI's history, nearly 1,000 Bureau personnel from 50 of our 56 field offices were in San Juan for the takedown.

By late morning, as U.S. Attorney General Eric Holder, U.S. Attorney for Puerto Rico Rosa Rodriguez-Velez, and FBI officials were announcing the operation at a press conference in Washington, members of our Hostage Rescue Team (HRT) and SWAT operators had already arrested 129 subjects in a seamless and successful operation.

Those charged with drug trafficking crimes and the use of a firearm in the commission of those crimes include 61 officers from the Puerto Rico Police Department, 16 officers from other municipal police departments, a dozen Puerto Rico Department of Corrections officers, members of the National Guard, and two U.S. Army soldiers. They all face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison.

"The actions of these individuals proved they were not worthy of the title of public servant," said Luis Fraticelli, special agent in charge of our San Juan office. "They violated the public's trust by using their authority for personal gain."

The case, dubbed Operation Guard Shack, began more than two years ago, when then-FBI Special Agent Jose Figueroa Sancha began an investigation into corrupt San Juan police officers.

One of our undercover agents posing as a dealer selling multiple kilos of cocaine put the word out that he needed security during drug deals. Many of those who responded were cops. They actively took part in the transactions by carrying weapons and patting down the drug buyers—who were actually FBI informants. For their protection efforts, the cops were paid between $500 and $4,000 for each drug deal. In all, more than $500,000 was paid in protection money.

FBI Executive Assistant Director Shawn Henry discusses the operation with reporters at a press conference in Washington, D.C.

Figueroa Sancha—now chief of the Puerto Rico Police Department—knew of the continuing investigation and said from the FBI command post this morning, "All the officers arrested during today's takedown did not honor or value the significance of working for the Puerto Rico Police Department."

The operation began at 3 a.m., when 65 tactical teams hit the streets. But the takedown represented the work of more than just HRT and SWAT. On hand were a range of Bureau personnel—crisis negotiators, evidence response team members, canines and their handlers, and some 80 medical personnel from first responders and nurses to a trauma surgeon and a veterinarian.

And none of those people or their equipment—including armored Humvees, helicopters, and 250 rental cars—would have been in place if not for the logistical experts who worked around the clock in the days leading up to the takedown.

"A lot of planning went into this," Fraticelli said, "and a lot of very capable people 'what if'd' the operation in every conceivable way."

"This case sends a powerful message," said Special Agent Alex Zappe, who worked the investigation from the beginning. "Corruption among our public officials—especially police officers—cannot be tolerated."
