False 9-11 call lands Philly man in jail

A Philadelphia man with a history of making false 9-11 was taken into custody after reportedly making an other false call where he threatened to kill police if they responded to his home.

Clarence Edgar Green, 54, Blue Springs Road, Philadelphia was charged with filing false 911 calls.

According to reports, Sunday, around 4:30 PM, Deputy Charles Butler, LCSO was dispatched to Blue Springs

Tennessee Troops Answer Call of Duty in Classroom

Tennessee Department of Education honors our national heroes for their service to the country and the classroom. Tennessee military personnel have the opportunity to start a second career as the great teachers and leaders needed in education through the Tennessee Troops to Teachers program.

"Tennessee is looking to fill our classrooms with highly qualified talent and positive role models," said Education Commissioner Bruce Opie.

during a Veteran's Day ceremony in Nashville that honored the men and women from Tennessee who are veterans of our nation's armed services.

"Today we pay a special tribute to all the veterans here in Tennessee who have made this the Volunteer State by time and again answering our nation's call to duty both at home and abroad, Bredesen said.

"As we honor these brave men and women, it is also appropriate to honor their families and thank them for the sacrifices they make when the time comes for their loved ones to serve."

Bredesen also paid special tribute to state employees who are veterans by recognizing four individuals from the Tennessee Departments of Labor and Workforce Development, Veterans Affairs, and Transportation.

"As a way of paying tribute to all veterans, today I would like to pay special tribute to those who also serve us in Tennessee Government. These individuals, for whom public duty is a way of life, continue to serve our state and its people in so many ways. In all corners of state government, veterans are working for the good of Tennessee every day."

Road in reference to a male who called 911 and advised the operator he wanted a ride to church.

The 911 operator advised the caller, identified as Clarence E. Green, his request was not an emergency and a officer would still be dispatched to speak with him.

The operator told Deputy Butler that before she disconnected the call Mr Green said, "If you do send one I'll kill him when he pulls up."

Upon arrival the deputy spoke with Green who was very irate and smelled of alcohol.

Deputy Butler advised Green his call to 911 was not an emergency and his action violated the false 911 call law.

Mr. Green admitted to making threats to the officers via the 911 operator. He was placed under arrest.

Green has a prior call history of false 911 calls.

Troops

"The men and women that have served our country are not only respected leaders, but the dedicated professionals that have the diversity, experience, and the skills to make a difference in classrooms."

Troops to Teachers works to improve education by providing motivated, experienced, and dedicated personnel for the nation's high-poverty classrooms. The program helps relieve teacher shortages, especially in math, science, special education and other critical subject areas, and assists military personnel in making successful transitions to second careers in teaching. State offices provide counseling and assistance regarding certification requirements, routes to state certification, and employment leads. Successful program candidates obtain certification or licensing as elementary, secondary, or vocational teachers. To date, 411 former military service and veterans in Tennessee have successfully started their second career through the program.

"Teaching is a rewarding career. Tennessee's Troops to Teachers office has counseled hundreds of interested military personnel, advising them on routes and programs to achieve full teacher certification in Tennessee, and referring them to school districts for employment," said Cliff Yager, Director of the Tennessee Troops to Teachers program.

The Troops to Teachers program is funded by the U.S. Department of Education and administered by the state Department of Education in collaboration with the U.S. Department of Defense.

For more information on this program, visit the Troops to Teachers website at www.tennessee.gov/education/lic/troop.shtml.
