The FBI Versus the Klan

Part 3: Standing Tall in Mississippi

As the civil rights movement began to take shape in the 1950s, its important work was often met with opposition—and more significantly, with violence—by the increasingly resurgent white supremacist groups of the KKK.

FBI agents in our southern field offices were on the front lines of this battle, working to see that the guilty were brought to justice and to undermine the efforts of the Klan in states like

Special Agent James Ingram, who served the FBI from 1957 to 1982, on the Bureau's battle with the Klan: "We had our problems, but FBI agents stood tall. Oh my goodness, did they stand tall."

According to an affidavit; on October 23rd, 2010, Deputy Marty Stanley, LCSO was dispatched to a residence on Shaw Ferry Road on a complaint of a physical domestic where the victim advised her grandson's wife, Mrs. Kenda Lynn Wolfenbarger, had been to her residence to show her some papers.

The victim was sitting in her wheel chair, looking at the papers, when Mrs. Wolfenbarger became upset and according to a witness, shouted, "Don't rip those up!"

Mrs. Wolfenbarger grabbed the papers from the victim's hands and twisted her hand, causing the skin on her hand to rip, leaving an approximately two inch laceration.

Rural Metro EMS were called to the scene by the Home Health Care nurse at the residence, and the victim was transported by Rural/Metro EMS to Fort Loudoun Medical Center to get her hand repaired.

Corporal Pete McGinley, LCSO served the warrant and made the arrest Saturday.

Police Beat

Anthony Tyler Jones,

20, Edgewood, Powell, was charged with DUI, simple possession of schedule VI and possession of drug paraphernalia.

According to records, about 4:10 am, Sunday, Deputy Robbie Lane, LCSO witnessed a maroon Nissan traveling north on Mulberry Street at a high rate of speed and paced it at 50 mph in a 30 mph zone. He conducted a traffic stop at the Loudon High School and made contact with the driver Mr. Anthony Jones.

The deputy stated in his report, he could smell the odor of marijuana coming from inside the vehicle. When asked if he had been smoking marijuana, Mr. Jones said no.

Deputy Lane asked Jones to step out of the car and then asked for permission to search and Jones consented to the search.

There were several small cigarettes in the ash tray that smelled like marijuana. There was also a pack of rolling papers inside the console. The deputy asked Mr. Jones if he knew what was in his ash tray and he stated it was roaches.

Mr. Jones did poorly on all field sobriety tasks and was taken into custody. Deputy Lane read implied consent to him and he agreed to be transported to Fort Loudoun ER for a blood test and then to the Loudon County Jail.

Ryan K. Norton, 22, Portland Drive, Lenoir City was charged with simple possession of marijuana and possession of schedule II morphine.

The report states, Wednesday, at 3:20 pm, Sgt. Billy Hall, LCSO stopped a white Acura for speeding 91 mph in a 65 mph zone, on Interstate 75 North at the 78 mile marker. The driver and only occupant was Ryan Norton.

Sgt. Hall deployed K9 Draga to sniff the vehicle and she alerted in the area of the open driver's side window. A search produced approximately 1 gram of marijuana and 1 round blue pill identified as morphine. The drugs were located under the passenger seat in a cigarette pack.

Rickie Carl McClintock, 59, Old Greenback Road, Lenoir City was charged with simple possession of schedule VI and possession of drug paraphernalia.

According to records, Deputy Michael Watkins, LCSO noticed a black Chevy S-10 with a tail light out on Highway 95 near Highway 321 Wednesday. Upon stopping the vehicle and approaching the driver, Mr. McClintock, the deputy detected a slight odor of burnt marijuana on his person.

Mr. McClintock consented to a search of his vehicle and two small baggy's of marijuana, a glass pipe, and a pack of rolling papers were discovered in a brown glove in the door panel. McClintock threw in another small baggy of marijuana upon arrest.

All three baggy's weighed approximately 14 grams total. He was also issued a citation for violation of the light law.

FBI

Mississippi. That was often difficult given the reluctance of witnesses to come forward and testify in court and the unwillingness of juries to convict Klansmen even in the face of clear evidence.

Fortunately, the struggles and insights of many of these agents have been recorded for posterity, and transcripts are available for review by the general public—thanks to the Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI and the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Foundation, which broke ground on a museum earlier this month.

In this story and the next in our Klan series, we'll highlight a few of these memorable discussions with our agents concerning their work against the KKK. The first comes from FBI Agent James Ingram, who served from 1957 to 1982 and played a key role in many civil rights investigations. Agent Ingram, who died recently, was assigned to the newly opened Jackson Field Office in Mississippi in 1964. A retired agent

In His Own Words: "Mr. So and So, I understand that you're going to whip any FBI agent that walks into your store. I'm not armed, but I wanted to let you know if you would like to whip me, let's get started..." -James Ingram and colleague in Jackson, Avery Rollins, interviewed Ingram before his death:

Special Agent Rollins: "You said that your average work week was six-and-a-half days. I would assume that your average work day was anywhere from 10 to 12 hours long?"

Special Agent Ingram: "Oh, it was. ...That's why we defeated the Klan. ... there was never a defeatist attitude because we were all on the same schedule. And everyone knew that we had to work."

That work continued following passage of the Civil Rights Act of 1964:

Special Agent Ingram: "There was one thing about [the law], Mr. Hoover knew that it was important. He gave Inspector Joe Sullivan and [Jackson Special Agent in Charge] Roy Moore a mandate. And he said, 'You will do whatever it takes to defeat the Klan, and you will do whatever it takes to bring law and order back to Mississippi.'"

The threats to FBI agents were real:

"Agents would always watch. They'd look underneath their cars to make sure we did not have any dynamite strapped underneath ... Then you'd open your hood and make sure that everything was clear there. We had snakes placed in mailboxes. We had threats."

But using informants and other tools, the tide began to turn:

* "[W]e infiltrated the Klan in many ways. We had female informants. ... And we had police officers that were informants for us."

* "When you look back, the FBI can be proud that they stopped the violence [of the KKK]. We had the convictions. We did what we had to do from Selma, Alabama to Jackson, Mississippi to Atlanta, Georgia."

* In the words of Special Agent Rollins, "...the FBI broke the back of the Klan in Mississippi. And eradicated it..."

A complete transcript of the interview of James Ingram can be found on the National Law Enforcement Officer Memorial Foundation Museum website, including much more discussion on the Klan. Also see additional FBI oral histories.

Regulations

checked at least every 72 hours.

*Shovelnose sturgeon may not be harvested. This means that all species of sturgeon must be released immediately.

*15-inch minimum length limit on largemouth bass at Great Falls Reservoir.

*Established a delayed harvest season on Piney River near Spring City. From Nov. 1 through last day of February, only artificial lures may be used and all trout must be released. From March 1 through October 31 trout may be harvested by all gears with a 7 trout creel limit.

*At Gibson County and Browns Creek (Henderson County) lakes, there will be an 18-24 inch protected length range (slot limit) on bass, with a creel limit of five and only one may be over 24 inches.

*Big Creek (Polk County) will follow the statewide trout regulations.

*To provide additional protection to muskellunge at Melton Hill Reservoir, muskie that are not intended to be harvested must be immediately released in a manner that promotes survival of the fish. Culling of muskie is not allowed.

*Removal of special trout regulations in Dale Hollow Reservoir. Dale Hollow will follow the same as statewide regulations.

*Changes to trout fishing on the Hiwassee River include the removal of the 14 inch length limit on brown trout and eliminate the Quality Trout Fishing Area from the entire trout zone (from the Apalachia Powerhouse downstream to the L&N railroad bridge at Reliance). Other changes include the implementation of a delayed harvest regulation for Hiwassee River (from Apalachia Powerhouse downstream to the L&N railroad bridge at Reliance). From Oct. 1-Feb. 28 all trout must be released and only artificial lures may be used. From March 1-Sept. 30, all gears are allowed and the trout creel limit is seven trout (all species combined), only two may be brown trout.

*Changes on South Holston Reservoir were made to match Virginia regulations for the reciprocal agreement. They include no harvest of white bass, changing the catfish creel limit to 20 per day; only one of which may be over 34 inches, reduce bluegill creel limit to 50 per day and reduce the number of limb lines from 25 to 15.

In other business at the meeting, the commission approved a pair of rule amendments to establish a $10 non-refundable application fee for computerized quota hunts for deer, turkey and Wildlife Management Areas. Currently, TWRA already requires a non-refundable fee of $10 for the Elk Quota Hunt and the Waterfowl Quota Hunt. This rule amendment will not affect Sportsman License holders, (including Annual and Lifetime Sportsman License holders, and persons possessing an Annual Senior Citizen Permit, Type 167), who will not be charged an application fee.

A resolution on wild hogs control was approved by the TWRC. The resolution defines that a wild hog on private property has potential for negative impacts and therefore the presence of a wild hog is evidence that damage is taking place. The goal of the resolution is to allow more efficient issuance of wild hog control permits to private landowners.

The annual awards for the TWRA Wildlife and Fisheries Biologists of the Year were presented at the meeting. David Lane, Erwin Hatchery Manager, was named the Fisheries Biologist of the Year. Chris Hunter, of Dyersburg, received the Wildlife Biologist of the Year award.

In addition, for the first time, the agency presented awards for the Wildlife and Fisheries Technicians of the Year. Wayne Ellison, from Chuck Swan WMA, was selected as the recipient of the Wildlife Technician of the Year. Carl Williams of the Stream Survey Unit was named Fisheries Technician of the Year.

The TWRC is scheduled to meet in Gatlinburg Dec. 1- 2. The public is invited to attend.

Holbrook

Road.

While talking with Mr. Holbrook the deputy asked him if he was firing a shotgun at a residence. At first Holbrook said no, he wasn't shooting, but when Deputy Patterson advised him his neighbors said he was shooting at their residence, Holbrook stated no, he was shooting in the air.

The deputy picked up the shotgun and ejected one spent shell. There was another spent shell on the front porch.

When Deputy Mark Tinnell, LCSO arrived on the scene he stayed with Mr. Holbrook while Deputy Patterson went to the other residence.

There were several pellet markings on the front of the trailer. Both people at the trailer stated they were standing in the living room talking when they heard a loud pop and then something that sounded like rain hitting the trailer. Then their landlord, James Holbrook shouted, "Do I have your attention now? Are you going to leave?" Then Mr. Holbrook fired another round at the trailer so they called 911.

Deputy Patterson noticed several beer bottles in Mr. Holbrook's living room and Holbrook smelled of alcohol and had slurred speech. When asked how many he'd had to drink, Mr. Holbrook stated, "10 or 12."

Deputy Patterson placed Mr. Holbrook under arrest and confiscated a single .12 gauge shotgun, a .22 automatic rifle, and a high power Remington 7400 rifle from his residence.
