Bad brake light nets 1 for cocaine

When local drug officers stopped a Georgia man's vehicle for having a brake light out, no identification or driver's license led to a field investigation that produced about a gram of cocaine allegedly found on the driver's person.

Francisco Gutterria Guzman, 24, Howard Lane, Atlanta, Georgia was charged with possession of schedule II (cocaine) and driving without a license.

According to records, Thursday, at approximately 10:30 AM,

Guzman

Sgt. Billy Hall, LCSO stopped a green mini van on Interstate 75 due to a brake light being out and while talking with the driver, Mr. Guzman, discovered he didn't have any form of identification or a valid drivers license.

After placing Mr. Guzman under arrest, the officer deployed his K9 partner Draga to sniff the vehicle. K9 Draga alerted in the area of the driver's door and rear hatch area.

A search of the vehicle produced no drugs but, a search of Mr Guzman produced approximately 1 gram of substance believed to be cocaine. Deputy Bobby Hamilton, LCSO was also on scene.

Police Beat

Ricky Dale Dotson II, 21, Sunnyside Road, Sweetwater was charged with possession of schedule IV narcotic.

Cody Arlen Kelley, 25, Allison Town Road, Philadelphia was charged with state warrant x 3, possession of schedule IV narcotic and criminal impersonation.

According to reports, Deputy Craig Brewer, LCSO noticed a white Honda Civic on Hotchkiss Valley Road, with the driver's side rear tail light out. The deputy stopped the vehicle and identified the driver as Ricky Dotson.

Mr. Dotson gave the lawman permission to search the vehicle and in the passenger floorboard the officer found a round pink pill that was identified as a klonopin.

Mr. Kelley was with Ricky Dotson and gave his name as Michael Kelley with a false date of birth and social security number.

Deputy Brewer reported he has dealt with Cody Kelley in the past and knew who he was on sight and the driver of the vehicle called him Cody several times while on the traffic stop.

Deputy Brewer made the arrests.

Myers

Myers was seen in the intimate apparel department with a large amount of clothing items next to her purse in the buggy. Ms. Myers began concealing small amounts of clothing in the following departments: intimate apparel, mens, and infants, before she went back through the mens department and into the shoe department, all the while concealing the clothing in her purse.

Myers reportedly then went to the register and purchased a soft drink and some potato chips before she started walking out of the store.

Ms. Myers was stopped by loss prevention after she walked past all points of sale, with the articles of clothing still in her purse and unpaid for. The total value of the pilfered items was $100.50.

Officer Emily Lawson, LCPD made the arrest.

Police Beat

Victoria A. York, 25, Gaston Road, Lenoir City was charged with DUI 1st offense.

Members and guests of American Legion Post 256, Tellico Lake, were enlightened on the fine points and the scientific methods used for homicide investigations.

Mrs. Wilson-Taylor from the Forensic Anthropology Center at The University of Tennessee explained how she and fellow colleagues apply standard scientific techniques developed in physical anthropology to identify human remains, and to assist in the detection of crime. Her department's skill in human identification services have been providing assistance to the State Medical Examiner System for the District Attorney General's Office, arson investigators, various state, local, and national law enforcement agencies and county medical examiners for almost thirty years.

Mrs. Wilson-Taylor most recently deployed to Haiti where she used her expertise in the assistance of recovery efforts.

Report

ed States, 2009.

These latest statistics come 80 years to the month after we took over the responsibility of compiling and publishing the nation's crime data from the International Association of Chiefs of Police. The categories back in 1930 were almost identical to what we have today—murder, rape, robbery, aggravated assault, larceny-theft, burglary, and auto theft. (Arson came later.)

Some crime highlights from the 2009 report:

* Each of the violent crime categories decreased from 2008—murder (7.3 percent), robbery (8.0 percent), aggravated assault (4.2 percent), and forcible rape (2.6 percent).

* Each of the property crime categories also dropped from 2008—motor vehicle theft (17.1 percent), larceny-theft (4.0 percent), and burglary (1.3 percent).

* Among the 1,318,398 violent crimes were 15,241 murders; 88,097 forcible rapes;

408,217 robberies; and 806,843 aggravated assaults.

* Among the 9,320,971 property crimes were an estimated 2,199,125 burglaries; 6,327,230 larceny-thefts; 794,616 thefts of motor vehicles; and 58,871 arsons.

* During 2009, the South accounted for 42.5 percent of all violent crime in the nation, followed by the West (22.9 percent), the Midwest (19.6 percent), and the Northeast (15.0 percent).

* During 2009, 43.9 percent of all property crimes in the U.S. were recorded in the South, with 22.7 percent in the West, 20.8 percent in the Midwest, and 12.6 percent in the Northeast.

Additional report highlights on criminals and victims:

* In 2009, agencies nationwide made about 13.7 million arrests, excluding traffic violations. Of those arrests, an estimated 581,765 were for violent crimes.

* Nearly 75 percent of all arrested persons in the nation during 2009 were male. Slightly more than 77 percent of all murder victims were also male.

* Firearms were used in 67.1 percent of the nation's murders, along with 42.6 percent of robberies and 20.9 percent of aggravated assaults. (Weapons data is not collected for forcible rapes.)

* Collectively, victims of property crimes (excluding arson) lost an estimated $15.2 billion during 2009.

Where do these numbers come from? From the 17,985 city, county, university and college, state, tribal, and federal agencies who participated in the Uniform Crime Reporting program in 2009. These agencies represent 96.3 percent of the nation's population.

The report also contains plenty of additional details, charts, and tables on crime during 2009, including more on offenses, criminals, victims, weapons used, geographic locations, etc. To find out about the crime picture in your state, go to our State Totals table at www.fbi.gov.

As always, a word of warning about drawing conclusions of the data by making direct comparisons between cities—valid assessments are possible only with careful study and analysis of the range of unique conditions affecting each local law enforcement jurisdiction. And coming this fall—the 2009 Law Enforcement Officers Killed and Assaulted and Hate Crime Statistics reports, which will be posted on our website, www.fbi.gov.
