The Good News

by Jeff Vittatoo

As Thanksgiving weekend draws to a close, each of us will prepare to turn our focus towards the Christmas season. The radio will begin playing the Christmas tunes that we all grew up listening to and many of you will begin decorating your homes, your lawns and digging out the dreaded Christmas sweaters. There are always a few "Pre-planners" who have left their lights dangling from the rooftops all year, needing only to plug them into a wall socket and Booyah..... Christmas lights displayed! Most of us, however, will begin with a tangled mess of lights and numerous boxes containing the assorted decorations that give our homes that holiday look.

Currently there are about 75 names that have not been taken and that means 75 Loudon County children between the ages of 1 and 13 that face a dismal Christmas. The hardcore holiday shoppers by now have undoubtedly scoured the local papers and many websites looking for the stores offering the best deals and they have planned their shopping routes to the slightest detail. If you encounter one of these individuals in the coming days please allow them to recklessly pass in front of you without nodding or speaking. Be sure to smile as they take the parking spot you were waiting on with your blinker engaged for two minutes and for goodness sakes keep in mind that slower traffic should always stay to the right and this includes within the walls of Wal-Mart just as on the highway. These folks are on a mission and cannot be held up or delayed by the likes of you and me. Please don't let yourself get angry or upset at these holiday hammerheads as they are simply Christmas shopping, preparing to spread love, joy and happiness to their loved ones. In their rush to spread never ending happiness to those within their "Christmas List" they sometimes forget that other people are also people. This year why don't we give em a pass and just tell them Merry Christmas and that Jesus loves them too!

In addition to the folks that I have previously described, there is another kind of person roaming the streets and shopping malls this time of year that we hear about each year and often never meet. I'm talking about the person who patiently waits and watches others, looking for a need that has not been met. The person who knows how blessed they are and how they can afford to sacrifice just a little to make an enormous impact in the life of someone they have never met. This person is selfless and doesn't seek recognition, praise or appreciation but seeks only to honor God with a little of what He so graciously has provided them throughout the year.

This holiday shopper knows the value of setting our affections on things above, and not on the things of the earth. This person realizes that God sacrificed much more than a few bucks in December so that we may be reconciled to Him and have access to eternal life. The shopper I am describing knows that God gave His only Son that whoever believes in Him should not perish but have everlasting life. I won't create a name for this shopper as it should be evident, although it is often not the case. They should simply be known by their fruits, as Christians.

This brings me to one simple question today..... Which scenario best describes you?

Maybe you have previously been the hardcore holiday shopper but would like to try see TGN cont. pg. 8 things a little different this year. I am confident that it will change the way you view Christmas forever! It's true that it is more blessed to give than to receive but when you give to someone who is unable to return the favor you will experience blessings from God that cannot be measured. Happy shopping and Merry Christmas from the Vittatoe's.
