Naked and Afraid

Have you ever wondered why we feel guilty when we do something that we know is wrong? Even outside of the things we are taught by our parents, our teachers and other people who have had an influence in our life, we are consciously aware when we sin. Often we choose to neglect that tiny voice in our heads that reminds us of the difference between right and wrong and we still do the things that we know to be wrong. We later experience guilt over the poor decision but more often than not, we turn around and do the exact same thing again later.

How does this work? How did the knowledge of good and bad find its way (see TGN pg. 3)

Jesus said, "Wide is the gate and broad is the road that leads to destruction, and many enter through it. But small is the gate and narrow the road that leads to life, and only a few find it. — Matthew 7:13-14 into our thought process?

As part of a recent decision to spend more time in God's Word seeking to hear from Him, I have decided to spend some time in the Old Testament. My desire is to see more of the character of God and how He relates to His people so I can better discern when and how He is inviting me to join Him in His work.

So I started at the beginning; in Genesis. I hadn't made it very far until I found myself reading the same couple of verses over and over like a broken record. God is either making sure I remember why things are the way they are, or He wants me to share this thought with you. Maybe both!

In the opening two chapters of the Bible God reveals to us that everything we see, everything we hear, everything we experience and enjoy comes from Him alone. He spoke the world into existence and He created man from the dust of the earth. He breathed life into man and then created woman from the man. His intention was for us to prosper and find perfect happiness in Him and in His creation. (Although He knew we would fail)

The last verse of Chapter 2 tells us that Adam and Eve were man and wife and they were together as one flesh. We are told that Adam and Eve were both naked in the garden but were not ashamed. They were naked and did not realize or care that they were naked. This is an important aspect of what happens next. Let's pick up in Chapter 3:

Genesis 3: 1-11 (NKJV) Now the serpent (Referencing Satan) was more cunning than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said to the woman, "Has God indeed said,

"You shall not eat of every tree of the garden?"

And the woman said to the serpent, "We may eat the fruit of the trees of the garden; but of the fruit of the tree that is in the midst of the garden, God has said, 'You shall not eat it, nor shall you touch it, lest you die.'"

Then the serpent said to the woman, "You will not surely die. For God knows that in the day you eat of it your eyes will be opened, and you will be like God, knowing good and evil."

So when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree desirable to make one wise, she took of its fruit and ate. She also gave to her husband with her, and he ate. Then the eyes of both of them were opened, and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves coverings.

And they heard the sound of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day, and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God among the trees of the garden.

Then the Lord God called to Adam and said to him, "Where are you?" So he said, "I heard Your voice in the garden, and I was afraid because I was naked; and I hid myself."

And He said, "Who told you that you were naked? Have you eaten from the tree of which I commanded you that you should not eat?"

Investment Con Man Pleads Guilty
Fraudster Targeted Medical Professionals

It's an age-old scam: A smooth-talking individual offers an amazing investment opportunity—with promises of large returns—that turns out to be completely bogus. But because there are always people willing to accept these kinds of claims at face value and hand over their hard-earned money, it's a scam that continues to be effective.

Consider a recent case in Orange County, California, where just-convicted David Rose duped more than 75 doctors and dentists from around the country into shelling out more than two million dollars for him to invest in companies involved in researching and developing emerging medical technologies. But the investment money, despite what he promised, never made it any further than Rose's own bank accounts.

From at least March 2005 to around May 2011, Rose solicited mainly doctors to invest money with him through his company, M.D. Venture Partners. In many instances, he recruited investors by placing ads in medical publications, but he also got additional business through referrals from doctors who had already signed with him.

In his promotional material and in conversations and e-mails with prospective clients, Rose claimed that investor funds would be pooled and used to invest in companies developing new medical technology—an area that of course was of great interest to physicians. Rose even prepared for each client a private placement memorandum (PPM), a document commonly used in investments that fully lays out how invested funds will be used and what the risks are. The PPM also stated that Rose would receive a 2.5 percent "management fee."

To keep his clients engaged in the scam, Rose periodically consulted with them to solicit their medical expertise and bounce ideas off them. But they never saw any return on their investment.

In 2011, he began another scam, this one involving recruiting dentists and orthodontists into giving money to his new company, Technology Innovation Partners. He claimed that their funds would be pooled and invested in a company developing technology that would remove wisdom teeth in children without surgery. Like his previous scam, Rose targeted a certain group of people and relied heavily on referrals. He tapped into the medical expertise of his investors to keep stringing them along. He also prepared phony PPMs for his clients—only this time, he upped his "management fee" to 10 percent.

But by 2013, after several complaints to the FBI from his victims—the Bureau began investigating Rose and his investment activities. And through numerous interviews with victims and other witnesses and detailed examinations of Rose's financial records—tracking where the money actually went—we were able to gather enough evidence for a federal indictment against him.

Where did investors' money end up? Investigators found that Rose used it to rent pricey homes in California and purchase an $80,000 powerboat, luxury vehicles, expensive jewelry, college tuitions, and even shares of stock in a professional football team.

If you are contemplating investing your hard-earned money, here are a few tips to help you do it as safely as possible:

- Be extremely cautious about unsolicited offers to invest.
- Don't believe everything you're told. Take the time to do your own research on the investment's potential and on the person making the offer.
- Be wary of investment opportunities that offer unusually high yields.
- Check with a trusted financial adviser, broker, or attorney about any investments you are considering.

Now there are about fifteen messages that can be drawn from this passage of scripture, but I want to draw your attention to just one or two aspects.

First of all, this was the moment that sin entered the human race. There was a temptation, a decision to disobey God and the consequences of the poor decision.

Regardless of who disobeyed first, Adam and Eve BOTH chose to do the only thing that God told them not to do. In doing so, the knowledge of sin entered man's heart and has been present ever since.

Satan downplayed the sovereignty of God, allowing Eve to ponder the potential of being equal to God. In our society today, we are told that all "religions" are equal and that there are many ways to heaven. We are told that we should all "coexist" and that everything will be ok in the end.

Just as Adam and Eve, we are each faced with the daily decision to honor God or choose to sin. We too try to hide ourselves from God and are ashamed when we are exposed.

If you took time to read further, you would see that although Adam and Eve sinned against God after being told the punishment would be death, God still had compassion on them. A sacrifice of animals and the shedding of blood had to take place so that their nakedness, and their sin, could be covered.

The sacrificing of animals and the shedding of innocent blood for the remission of sins remained upon God's people from that day until the day that Jesus shed His blood for the sake of sin.

Jesus paid the price for the sins of the world on the cross of Calvary and only through trusting in Him can we receive forgiveness of sins and the gift of eternal life. This truly is the only way.

Are you naked and afraid today? Is there sin in your life that has stolen your peace? Have you eaten of the fruit of the wrong tree and need to experience the compassion of our Savior?

Romans 10:13 "For whoever calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved."
