The Good News

by Jeff Vittatoo

A Psalm of Praise

If you spend any time at all in the word of God, then you have undoubtedly had the occasion to open your Bible and have a scripture jump out at ya before you even decided where you were going to read that day. It just happened to me as I was planning to study for today's message. I came home from work a few moments ago, turned off the television and opened the Word with every intention of praying about a topic and then searching the scriptures to see what God placed on my heart. As I opened my Bible to about the middle, my attention was drawn to a passage of

Leader of Violent Street Gang Going to Prison

Multi-Agency Investigation Dismantles Criminal Organization

He headed a dangerous criminal organization responsible for not only a great deal of the gang violence occurring on the streets of New Haven, Connecticut, but also for the large-scale distribution of cocaine in and around the city. But earlier this month, Donald "Main" Ogman was sentenced to more than 15 years in prison after pleading guilty to federal drug charges. Nineteen of his fellow gang members and other associates have previously pled guilty to various federal charges.

And as a result, the streets of New Haven are a little safer these days.

Under Ogman's leadership, his criminal enterprise--the Grape Street Crips--was a force to be reckoned with. Much of the violence—a lot of it in the Hill neighborhood of New Haven—was attributed to the turf battle occurring between the Crips and other gangs. The Grape Street Crips wanted to maintain their influence over drug trafficking and firearms trafficking in the Hill, and they used intimidation, threats of violence, shootings, assaults, and homicides to make sure that they did.

But Ogman also had a direct hand in the trafficking of drugs—he would purchase large quantities of cocaine from criminal suppliers, and then, after processing the cocaine into “crack,” redistribute it to gang members and others in the Hill and other neighborhoods. Ogman often cooked the cocaine into crack himself and used drug addicts (or “friends,” as he called them) to test the batches he made.

Trying to get a handle on the drug trafficking and violence being perpetrated by the Grape Street Crips and other gangs, the FBI’s New Haven Safe Streets Task Force—which includes the Connecticut De-scripture that I was compelled to read and now feel led to share. I don't know who (besides me) God wants to share this encouraging passage with today but it may be you so don't stop reading just yet.

Psalm 111 - Praise the Lord! I will praise the Lord with my whole heart, in the assembly of the upright and in the congregation. The works of the Lord are great, studied by all who have pleasure in them.

His work is honorable and glorious, and His righteousness endures forever. He has made His wonderful works to be remembered; The Lord is gracious and full of compassion. He has given food to those who fear Him. He will ever be mindful of His covenant. He has declared to His people the power of His works, in giving them the heritage of the nations.

The works of His hands are verity and justice; All His precepts are sure. They stand fast forever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. He has sent redemption to His people; He has commanded His covenant forever; Holy and awesome is His name.

The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom; A good understanding have all those who do His commandments. His praise endures forever.

It's easy sometimes in our busy lives to forget the holiness and majesty of the One who gives us breath each morning and provides for our every need throughout the day. We get complacent, even to the point that we credit ourselves for our success and forget that we only exist because God allows us to do so and only then because He has a plan for our lives that brings honor to Himself and lost souls to Jesus.

I admit that I am sometimes guilty of forgetting from where I came. It is often easy to get caught up in the blessings and forget the Source of them. Two more passages of scripture come to mind as I write;

Luke 12:48 "For everyone to whom much is given, from him much will be required."

Leviticus 11:44 "For I am the Lord your God. You shall therefore consecrate yourselves, and you shall be holy; for I am holy."

From the Old Testament to the New Testament, the entire Bible declares the mighty power and eternal holiness of God Almighty. I suppose God wanted to remind me of that today, and maybe even you as well. What you do with this truth is now up to you. How will we respond today? How can we honor God with the very breath that He alone has given us? I encourage you to ponder this scripture as you go about your business today and allow God to use you to bring honor to Jesus.

partment of Corrections, the Connecticut State Police, and the New Haven, Hamden, and Milford Police Departments—began to investigate and soon honed in on Ogman and his associates.

The FBI has 164 Violent Gang Safe Streets Task Forces in field offices nationwide, staffed by nearly 850 Bureau agents, more than 1,500 state and local law enforcement personnel, and almost 100 other federal law enforcement agents. These task forces go after violent gangs through sustained, proactive, coordinated investigations—often using federal laws targeting racketeering, drug conspiracy, and firearms violations to identify and prosecute the leadership of these gangs and obtain lengthy prison sentences. Our Safe Streets initiative is the principal federal, state, and local partnership engaged in reducing violent crime throughout the country.

For the investigation into Donald Ogman and the Grape Street Crips, Bureau agents and task force officers working side by side used a variety of techniques to uncover the extent of the group's criminal activity, including court-authorized wiretaps, the execution of search and seizure warrants, electronic and physical surveillance, and confidential informants. Between March and September 2011, law enforcement also set up a series of about 75 controlled drug buys—using confidential informants to purchase cocaine from members and associates of the gang, including Ogman. The wiretaps on Ogman's phone were fruitful as well, providing evidence of his leadership of the Grape Street Crips and his involvement in drug trafficking. During one particular conversation he had with an associate, the two discussed a couple of unrelated federal drug investigations in New Haven and mused on the perils of being the target of such an investigation.

Ogman soon found out how perilous it could be. In March 2012, investigators executed a series of search warrants, seizing drugs, drug paraphernalia, cash, firearms, ammunition, and other items. Ogman was charged and taken into custody, as were a number of his fellow gang members and associates. In March 2014, he pled guilty to drug conspiracy charges prior to his sentencing.

And not long after

Ogman was taken into custody and his criminal enterprise was virtually dismantled, New Haven police reportedly noted a reduction in crime in the neighborhood areas where the Grape Street Crips operated.
