Ever think about God?

Ephesians 4:4-6: "There is one God, who is above all, and through all, and in you all."

Have you ever just sat and meditated on God's splendor and glory? Let me explain.

There is a little piece of ground located in Philadelphia, Tennessee, that my wife and I are caretakers of. Notice that I did not say that we owned it; God owns it! He has allowed us to be the caretakers for a time, and then it will pass off to someone else. We call it home, and here we raised three children. To the typical passerby, nothing would seem special about this place. We do not have a big sparkling house and the lawn is not perfectly

International Soccer Officials Indicted

'Deep-Rooted' Corruption, Racketeering Alleged

The U.S. government this morning unsealed indictments in a New York federal court against high-ranking officials and corporate executives affiliated with FIFA, the governing body of international soccer, for their roles in a decades-long scheme to corrupt the sport through bribes, kickbacks, and other criminal activity aimed at controlling lucrative marketing rights to international tournaments such as the World Cup.

Nine FIFA officials—including two current vice presidents—along with five corporate executives were charged with racketeering, wire fraud, and money laundering, among other offenses.

"The indictment alleges corruption that is rampant, systemic, and deep-rooted manicured. In fact, the roof needs mending and the house needs painting. However, in spite of those deductions from an appraisal standpoint, there is something far more valuable here; this place has details!

There is a little spring creek that runs clear and cold across the property, and it provides a place of heavenly bliss. You have heard about this place if you have read the story "Holding Hands with God" in the Monday's Message book. I have put up a little picnic shed there and a few swings to enjoy special times with family and friends. God is there too, and I can feel His presence in times of quiet reflection and meditation. My wife and I, and Betty Beagle often go there and just sit in silence, and enjoy the harmonious sounds of this special place. God is in the details that often go overlooked by many people.

Over the years we have entertained family, friends, church gatherings, school kids, and others at our little piece of ground. And within all of these, we have seen God's handiwork. He is in the sound of the water as it rushes over the rocks, and He is in the deep blue of the sky above. He is in the sound of the hawk and the hoot-owl, and he is in the whistle of the bob white quail. He is in the warmth of the hugs and handshakes of those who come, and He is in the sigh of contentment when the time comes to go. He is in the smell of the campfire smoke and the toasted marshmallows too. He is in the giggle of the teenage girls, and He is in the missing front teeth of the red-headed freckle-faced boy. He is in the minnows and crawdads that are examined by kids not accustomed to such discoveries, and He is in the melody of the birds as they sing to honor His glory.

God surrounds us with reminders of His very presence. He is evident in every heartbeat, every breath, every tear, and in every smile. He is in every laugh, and in the twinkle of every eye. He is in every act of love and kindness, and He is in every whisper and exclamation. God is everywhere and in everything, and He is with you right now, because He is in the details!

"Father Lord, You are great, and Your greatness is unsearchable." (Psalm 145:3) both abroad and here in the United States," said Attorney General Loretta E. Lynch. "It spans at least two generations of soccer officials who, as alleged, have abused their positions of trust."

Related guilty pleas of an additional four individuals and two corporate defendants were unsealed today as well. The investigation, which is ongoing, has also snared U.S. sports marketing executives. In all, it is alleged that more than $150 million in bribes and kickbacks were paid or agreed to be paid to obtain media and marketing rights to international soccer tournaments.

"The defendants fostered a culture of corruption and greed that created an uneven playing field for the biggest sport in the world," noted FBI Director James B. Comey. "Undisclosed and illegal payments, kickbacks, and bribes became a way of doing business at FIFA," he said.

Director Comey at Press Conference on Charges Against FIFA Officials

FBI Director James Comey joins other federal officials, including Attorney General Loretta Lynch (left) at a press conference in New York regarding the indictments of nine FIFA officials and five corporate executives on corruption and racketeering charges.

FIFA—the Fédération Internationale de Football Association—is the organization responsible for the regulation and promotion of soccer worldwide. It also oversees officials of other soccer governing bodies that operate under the FIFA umbrella.

The organization is composed of 209 member associations, including six continental confederations that assist it in governing soccer in different regions of the world. The U.S. Soccer Federation is one of 41 member associations of the confederation known as CONCACAF, which has been headquartered in the U.S. throughout the period charged in the indictment.

A key way FIFA makes money is by selling media and marketing rights associated with flagship tournaments such as the World Cup. Rights are typically sold through multi-year contracts. Sports marketing companies, in turn, sell the rights downstream to TV and radio broadcast networks, major corporate sponsors, and other sub-licensees who want to broadcast the matches or promote FIFA ctd. pg. 7 their brands. According to FIFA, 70 percent of its $5.7 billion in total revenues between 2011 and 2014 was attributable to the sale of TV and marketing rights to the 2014 World Cup.

The indictment alleges that between 1991 and present, the defendants and their co-conspirators corrupted the enterprise by engaging in various criminal activities. Two generations of soccer officials abused their positions of trust for personal gain, frequently through alliances with sports marketing executives who shut out competitors and kept highly lucrative contracts for themselves through the systematic payment of bribes and kickbacks.

The investigation was carried out by the FBI's New York Field Office—specifically the Eurasian Joint Organized Crime Squad—in partnership with the Internal Revenue Service's Criminal Investigation Division and a variety of international partners.

The wide-ranging corruption at FIFA, said Lynch, "has profoundly harmed a multitude of victims, from the youth leagues and developing countries that should benefit from the revenue generated by the commercial rights these organizations hold, to the fans at home and throughout the world whose support for the game makes those rights valuable. Today's action," she added, "makes clear that this Department of Justice intends to end any such corrupt practices, to root out misconduct, and to bring wrongdoers to justice. We look forward to continuing to work with other countries in this effort."
