Byte Out of History FBI Involvement in Early Election Fraud Case in Kansas City

Impartial and fair elections are the cornerstone of any democracy, and the FBI has a long history of investigating illegal activities that harm the elective process.

One of our earliest investigations involved Kansas City political fixer Tom Pendergast, who was threatened by the basic workings of democratic elections—in particular, by any election that didn't go his way. In the 1920s and 1930s, Pendergast, a former alderman, ran the political machine that controlled the electoral choices in Kansas City, Missouri, and he got rich in the process. Because of

Domestic

Christopher Oakes, 38, Clay Hollow Road Sweetwater, was charged with Domestic Assault. Deputy Ben Everett LCSO, was dispatched to Clay Hollow Road on a domestic in progress. Upon arrival Deputy came in contact with the victim at the end of the driveway. The victim stated that while she was asleep in her bedroom she was awoken by Christopher Oakes. Christopher in a angrily manner, holding a letter in his hand from their daughters boyfriend that made him angry. Victim stated that Christopher stated that he was leaving and taking their son with him. Victim stated that Christopher left with their 6 year old son and she did not want him to take their son with him because he was angry, and it was in the middle of the night.

Victim stated she then called 911, Christopher showed back up at the house and stated to victim if he went to jail he would shoot her. Via dispatch this statement was recorded. Christopher did leave with the child again, while Deputy was talking with victim, Christopher had called dispatch and he was advised by dispatch to go to the Dinner Bell off the 62 exit. Sgt. Jerramie Bowen LCSO, then left the scene to meet Christopher. Deputy Everett took statements from

History

Pendergast's corrupt activities—including voter fraud and bribery—Kansas City became known as an open city where gangsters moved freely and prostitution, gambling, and drug enterprises flourished.

And, of course, election fraud flourished as well, along with its accompanying scare tactics. The 1934 primary election in Kansas City had been so violent that it became known as the "Bloody Election," with thugs connected to the Pendergast machine committing acts of violence and intimidation against opponents and voters across the city. The fraudulent reporting of election results was even more damaging to the democratic process—precincts returned astronomical participation rates. Vote totals for machine candidates (Pendergast's picks) even exceeded the total population in several wards and precincts.

Tired of Pendergast's tight-fisted control of their city, a coalition of his opponents banded together for 1936 municipal elections and attempted to throw Pendergast's supporters out of office. But that was not to be, at least not right away.

For the spring primary, fraud appeared to be the order of the day. U.S. Attorney Maurice Milligan of the Western District of Missouri later wrote that in one city ward, the vote ratio was 1,045 to 1, and in another, the ratio was 1,469 to 1—both in favor of the machine candidates. The sheer size of the margins suggested a serious problem.

In anticipation of the 1936 general election in the fall, Milligan called for a grand jury to convene and began to gather information. A federal judge from the district agreed, saying that there was "a crying need for the purification of the ballot in America" and authorizing Milligan to seize electoral records after the counts were submitted to investigate possible fraud. It would be the U.S. Marshals' job to gather and secure the evidence and the FBI's job to help analyze this voluminous material and collect additional evi-

Jason Sims, 42, Blue Tick Lane Lenoir City, was charged with DUI, and Possession of a Handgun while under the Influence.

According to the report, Trooper Eric Miller THP, was dispatched to a 3 vehicle traffic crash with property damage on Interstate 75 n at mm 75. Knox Co. advised Trooper earlier of a bolo for a white vehicle swerving in and out of traffic.

The white vehicle then impacted the complainant in the rear of a black suv. Upon arrival Trooper came in contact with Jason Sims the driver of the white vehicle. Trooper ask Jason if he had consumed any alcoholic beverage, illegal narcotic, or prescription medication. Jason stated he had taken his Xanax this morning.

Trooper ask Jason if he had any weapons in the vehicle he stated a handgun he had just purchased at a pawn shop. Jason did poorly on sobriety test and was placed under arrest.

Trooper Eric Miller THP, made the arrest.

History ctd. from pg. 3
ence in the case.

On election morning, the Pendergast political machine was out in full force. Voting proceeded throughout the day and election officials tallied, recorded, reported, and sealed the records as they were supposed to. But at that point, the U.S. Marshals stepped in and claimed the records under grand jury warrant. By 8 p.m. that night, truckloads of ballots and other records—12 tons worth—were carted to the federal building in Kansas City and FBI agents began to examine them.

FBI Agent Charles Appel, the founder of the Bureau's Technical Laboratory, was point man, as his expertise was forensic document examination. The first bag opened revealed that at least 95 ballots had been tampered with. Further analysis showed such fraud and other tinkering were systemic.

The first federal indictments for voter fraud were leveled in January 1937, and by the middle of 1938, 242 people had either pled guilty or been convicted at trial. Of those who chose to go to trial, they were convicted by juries of their peers—who perhaps were sending a message that corruption would no longer be tolerated in Kansas City.

Of course, Pendergast himself appeared unscathed at first, but his political machine was severely damaged. And these first cracks in his organization led to other challenges to his rule. Eventually, agents of the Internal Revenue Service were able to gather evidence against Pendergast on tax evasion charges related to a large kickback he had received, and the boss' rule was ended by a guilty plea and a stint in the Leavenworth federal penitentiary.

THP

James Porcella, 36, Augusta Lane Lenoir City, was charged with DUI, and Violation of Implied Consent. Trooper Matthew Vespie THP, observed a vehicle weaving in the roadway crossing the center line multiple times. Trooper made a traffic stop on the vehicle and came in contact with the driver identified as James Porcella, who had a distinct odor of an intoxicating substance about his person. James stated he had not been drinking. James failed all sobriety test giving, before refusing to continue. James had stated upon arrest that he had a few beers after initially denying drinking anything. James refused blood test and was placed under arrest. Trooper Matthew Vespie THP, made the arrest.

Are You Ready To Win Money Fast?

by: Eddie Lambert

It is possible to win the lottery on the very first try. You don't have to mortgage your home to win a few bucks like so many people do. Are you confident that your lottery strategy will work? If you don't have one, don't worry about it... knowing what can go wrong will make it easy for you to win the lottery.

Put these 6 strategic methods to work when playing your favorite lotto game and watch your lottery winnings soar.

Tip #1) Increase the amount of tickets you play. If you play 5 lines per game with one ticket, you could win big but chances are you won't. One ticket is not enough. Select more lines - a lot more, and use them all in one game. If you are short on cash and are unable to do this, hold off playing until you can play more tickets in one game. This is the best way to win at lottery games.

Tip #2) Have you won more than once playing the lotto? Since the lottery is a numbers game, play more numbers with just one game or two. Winning the lottery can be done in more than one way but playing 5 different games per week with just a few tickets for each game will not net you the results you want. Winning the lottery can be easy if you put all of your efforts into one game.

Tip #3) Do you think all hope is lost because you are not winning? Be the winner you want to be. Press on. If you stop playing, you can't win.

Tip #4) Spending a lot of money on the lottery is a waste of money. A lot of people win on one ticket, why can't I. Is this your thought process? Take some friendly advice... playing lotto is like going to a football game... getting access to those prize seats at the venue will not be possible if you have not purchased a ticket. Stay in the game and play as often as you can.

Tip #5) Create some financial goals for yourself. Make plans to reach your financial mountain top and get out of the valley of want ing with the female involved, Officer Arden encountered the male identified as Larry Justice sitting in the driver seat of a white vehicle. Larry stated that he and his girlfriend the victim were arguing as they traveled n on Hwy 321. Larry stated that the victim was driving and brought the vehicle to a stop on Hwy 321 just prior to Hwy 70, where victim removed the keys and exited the vehicle. Larry stated he slid from the passenger seat to the driver seat. The victim went to the passenger side and started removing her property. Larry stated he demanded the keys and victim punched the mirror before tossing the keys to him. Larry stated he started the vehicle and drove to the right shoulder of 321 with the door still open and victim between them. Larry stated he was not aware that the victim was being dragged by the vehicle. Victim confirmed the story. Larry was placed under arrest. Officer Jason Arden LCPD, made the arrest.
