a slow speed in the fast lane. The deputy attempted to stop the vehicle on I-75 and it continued and stayed in the passing lane traveling at a slow speed and then sparks started to come from the vehicle.

The front driver side tire was gone and the vehicle continued on its rim spraying sparks from the vehicle. The vehicle was dragging the front bumper and the undercarriage on the interstate and finally came to a stop. The vehicle was unable to travel anymore due to the damage. The officer made contact with the female subject behind the wheel and she was still attempting to make the vehicle go. After verbal commands she finally turned the vehicle off and raised her hands. The female had to be taken out from the passenger side due to the damage on the driver's side. The woman was identified as Melinda O'Neill of B Street, Lenoir City. Ms. O'Neill had a very strong odor of an alcoholic beverage coming from her breath and she was very unsteady on her feet and had slurred speech. The officer didn't feel safe doing sobriety tasks and the woman performed them at the jail and she performed poorly. She also refused a BAC test as well.

Melinda O'Neill, 37 of B Street, Lenoir City was charged with DUI, evading arrest and viol. of implied consent. Deputy Jason Goddard, LCSD made the arrest.

Police Beat

Jose Pizarro, 42, of D Street, Lenoir City was charged with no driver license, financial resp. and viol. of registration.

According to the report, Mr. Pizarro did not have a license or insurance and the vehicle was not properly registered.

Grants

nizations based on grant proposals submitted to a blue ribbon committee appointed by the Tennessee Supreme Court and chaired by Nashville attorney Margaret Behm. The committee reviewed the requests and recommended awards. The grants, ranging from $10,000 to $355,806, were approved by the Supreme Court.

"This is a wonderful use of the excess CLE money," Chief Justice William M. Barker said. "It will help not only lawyers, but many others, including children in foster care and mothers who will be able to stay with their children while they overcome addictions. We are grateful to the Continuing Legal Education Commission for making this possible."

The largest award will be used for two related proposals submitted by the Tennessee Bar Association and the Memphis, Chattanooga, Nashville and Knoxville Bar Associations. The grant will be used to purchase webcasting equipment, including cameras and microphones. It also will be used for maintenance and hosting. In part, it will provide required Continuing Legal Education (CLE) to rural attorneys and those with disabilities, since most CLE is conducted in urban areas.

The equipment automatically webcasts programs over the internet so they can be viewed in real time or later on demand. It also allows interaction with viewers and has moderated question and answer capability. The five Bar associations will allow the Tennessee judicial system and organizations providing legal services to low income clients free use of the equipment for five years.

To view the entire list of grants visit: www.tsc.state.tn.us/geninfo/PRESSREL/2007/074pr.htm.

Stupid Criminals

A man is involved in a car accident. When the police arrive, the man gives his drivers license to the officer, and then literally turns and runs away. The officer doesn't give chase, but does check him through the computer. He has no warrants and is a valid driver. His car is also registered to him and everything is proper. The officer simply tows the man's car, drives over to his house and issues him a ticket.

Nashville, TN - A man hitch-hiking offers an off duty officer a bag of crack cocaine for a ride, and gets arrested.

A call to police by a Montgomery County motel manager over a guest's refusal to pay his bill has netted them a fully operational drug lab inside the guest's room.

In Berks County (Pa.), police arrested a 16-year-old driver and his 19-year-old passenger in July in Exeter Township when the driver coolly pulled up to a sobriety checkpoint and told officers they were on the way to a party, even though both were obviously intoxicated; the car was littered with empty and open beer cans; and the boys looked much younger than 21 (the drinking age). And two other things: The car had been reported stolen, and in the back seat was a leather satchel containing various license plates, car titles and other motor-vehicle papers (Reading Eagle/Times, 7-30-00).

After serving eight months in Placer County jail for auto theft and drunken driving, Jessie* never got out of the facility's parking lot. Less than 15 minutes after being given his freedom, the 28 year old Loomis resident was back in jail for allegedly plotting a bank robbery with an undercover officer who met him in the parking lot.

Authorities had learned that Alexander planned to rob a bank within a week of being let out of jail. Four agencies arranged for an undercover officer to meet with Alexander in the parking lot. Alexander then solicited the undercover officer man's help for a bank robbery. He was arrested at 6:10 a.m. - just 14 minutes after he'd walked out of jail. Alexander is charged with soliciting another person to commit a felony and is being held on 30,000.00 bail.

Stevens Point, Wis. A woman didn't have to look far to figure out who likely broke into her home and took a camera from her purse. Police said the burglar left behind his probation and parole card.

Police say Jack Schreiner, 30, strolled into a Chase Manhattan Bank branch at 84-01 Jamaica Ave. at 10:30 on a Monday and handed a teller a note demanding money. The teller complied and surrendered $7,791 in cash. On Friday, Schreiner returned to the bank at 11:24 a.m. - this time to open up a savings account. After the manager and teller verified the man was the original bank robber, the police were called and were able to catch their man.

Murfreesboro, TN - A man who was stopped for driving erratically on a divided highway was distracted because he was looking at pornography, authorities said. He was apprehended after reportedly nearly running another vehicle off the highway several times.
