Farms

horticulture marketing specialist Rob Beets. "Buy a natural tree this year from a nearby farm, and you'll give a great holiday gift to the environment and to local farmers."

"Lots of people don't think about where plastics – and therefore artificial trees – come from," says Beets. "Plastic is made with petroleum products. Lead, an ingredient in PVC (polyvinyl chloride) plastic, and other metals, are also important parts of an artificial tree. Fake trees don't biodegrade, and chances are they've traveled a long way, leaving a huge carbon footprint to get to the store or your home. About 85 percent of them start in China, but they'll end up sitting in our landfills for centuries."

"In contrast, natural Christmas trees are completely recyclable, and are close to home, waiting to be transported only from the farm to your living room, leaving a carbon footprint of just about nothing," says Beets. "While they're growing, natural Christmas trees absorb carbon dioxide and other gases and emit fresh oxygen. Christmas Trees are often grown on soil that doesn't support other crops, and their root systems serve to stabilize soil, protect area water quality and provide refuge for wildlife." Grown on farms, one to three new seedlings are planted for every tree harvested to ensure a constant supply.

"If you choose a cut tree, after the holidays you can take it to a local site to be turned into mulch for area trails. Some people also like to place their old trees in their ponds or favorite fishing spots to serve as fish habitats. No matter what you do with it, it's 100 percent biodegradable."

"There's also the option to buy a balled and burlapped live tree to replant once the holidays are over. The grower at the farm will be happy to give you tips on how to plant and care for your transplanted tree. Buying a live tree from a farm close to you is a guarantee that the variety you choose will grow well in your area, an assurance you can't always get other places."

"When you visit a Tennessee Christmas tree farm, you don't just do the planet a favor – you give yourself a treat, too," says the specialist. "Local tree growers depend on loyal customers, so they make sure you can't wait to come back year after year for a great holiday experience. Most tree farms carry freshly made wreaths and garlands, and many have gift shops on site with all sorts of holiday décor inside. Lots of farmers offer complimentary hot chocolate or cider, some have hayrides. Some growers even conduct on-farm holiday craft classes or host special events which might even include a visit from Santa."

"Tennessee has Christmas tree farms from one end of the state to the other," says Beets. "Find the ones closest to you by visiting the Web site www.picktnproducts.org and clicking on the Christmas tree for a statewide directory. Always call ahead and confirm hours of operation and activities."

intoxicated. He is accused of threatening the other occupants of the vehicle he was riding in.

Freddie Eugene McMahon, 45, of Trigon Road, Maryville, was charged with assault by domestic violence.

According to the report, Sgt. Brian Jenkins, LPD received a call in reference to an ongoing domestic problem in a vehicle on Hwy 11 coming into the City of Loudon from the Philadelphia area. The officer found a vehicle matching the description and stopped it.

The victim and a witness both stated that Freddie McMahon was very intoxicated and continually yelled and threatened to harm the victim.

McMahon smelled heavily of an intoxicant and had no one to take care of him and he was determined to be the primary aggressor.

LAST WEEKS RIDDLE

A man walks into a pub and sits down at the bar, and simply orders a water. The bartender looks at the man, and then, quickly pulls out a shotgun and points it at the man. The man says, "Thank you," and leaves. Why did they behave this way?

The man had hiccups

RIDDLE

One day, a father went to his three sons and told them that he would die soon and he needed to decide which one of them to give his property to. He decided to give them all a test. He said, "Go to the market, my sons, and purchase something that is large enough to fill my bedroom, but small enough to fit in your pocket." From this, I will decide who of you is the wisest and is worthy enough to inherit my land." So, they all went to the market and bought something that they thought would fill the room, yet was still small enough that they could fit into their pockets. Each son came back with a different item. The father told his sons to come into his bedroom one at a time and try to fill up his bedroom with whatever they had purchased. The first son came in and put some pieces of cloth that he had bought and laid them end to end across the room, but it barely covered any of the floor. Then the second son came in and laid some hay, that he had purchased, on the floor but there was only enough to cover half of the floor. The third son came in and showed his father what he had purchased and how it could fill the entire room yet still fit into his pocket. The father replied, "You are truly the wisest of all and you shall receive my property."

What was it that the son had showed to his father?

Program

a special program to help bring hope to those who are grieving.

Certified through the Association of Death Education and Counseling, UT Medical Center chaplain Ron Russell will hold Hope for the Holidays, a special bereavement support meeting, on Friday, Dec. 7, 10 - 11:30 a.m., in the education room of UT Medical Center's Heart Lung Vascular Institute.

"Our goal is for those grieving the loss of a loved one to be able to celebrate the holidays rather than to fear them," Russell said. "Celebrating involves the person who has died. Death ends a life, but not a relationship."

During the program, Russell will discuss various aspects of grief. He'll convey that grief is highly individualized, based on elements such as the personality of the griever and the nature of the relationship that person had with her or her loved one. Russell will let participants know that it's perfectly normal to have feelings of grief and will explain how they can plan their holiday season in order to best cope with the loss.

"I recommend that people make the deceased part of their celebration in order to bring it out into the open and deal with the emotions," Russell said. "Dealing with something like this is always much more healthy than avoidance."

The program is free and open to all. For more information, call UT Medical Center's Department of Pastoral Care at (865) 544-9704 or (865) 305-9704.

Police Beat

Jodi Lea Bunch, 20, of Eblen Cave Road, Lenoir City was charged with driving on suspended.

According to the report, Lt. Gillis Morgan, LCPD received a call of a woman passed out in a car that was sitting in the Ingle's parking lot. The officer found Jodi Bunch sitting behind the wheel.

A check of her license showed them to be suspended.

Bunch stated she was there to pick up a friend. Lt. Gillis Morgan, LCPD made the arrest.

Gabriel Rodriguez Treah, 27, of Old Hwy 95, Lenoir City, was charged with public intoxication

According to the report, Deputy David Donovan, LCSD was advised by dispatch of a possible intoxicated person walking along Hwy 11. The deputy spotted the individual stumbling around the road.

The suspect spoke little English and was very unstable and had trouble keeping his balance. Deputy David Donovan, LCSD made the arrest.

Raul Ibarra Bedolla, 35, of Oakwood Hills, Sweetwater, was charged with a capias out of criminal court for failure to appear on possession of schedule II for resale charges.
