Fishing

killer to kill every bit of the grass in my yard; mowing takes 3 hours a week and with no yard work I gain an extra 156 hours a year to fish.

The hardest resolution that I have this year is building a new office, one equipped with all the high tech gadgets and video stuff for my laptop.

Now, you might wonder why this is so difficult.

Well I'm building that office on my pontoon boat so that when the boss tries to reach me, he won't have a clue that I'm fishing.

I also do a lot of guiding here in East Tennessee for those whiskery bottom feeders and I think that it would be appropriate to learn how to play "Dueling Banjos" for all my Yankee customers. Give them a memorable fishing trip.

I also have an environmental resolution: I want to make my carbon foot print bigger than Al Gores and that new 454 big block and wood burning fireplace that I had put in my pontoon boat is a good start.

I am an inventor in my spare time, mostly inventing new fishing lures. This year I want to invent one that doesn't have all those wires or a fuse. Haven't had much luck without one of those two components though, maybe this will be the year.

The most important resolution this year is to take my new grandson fishing every week. Remember, spare the fishing rod, spoil the child. -Gus state routes clear during the upcoming winter season. This year, TDOT and the Tennessee Highway Patrol are also joining a new national safe winter driving campaign called, "Ice and Snow: Take it Slow."

Campaign

"TDOT is ready to work around the clock to keep our roadways clear of ice and snow this winter," said TDOT Commissioner Gerald Nicely. "We also want drivers to remember that winter conditions call for different driving tactics, so when you're driving in ice and snow, take it slow - slower speed, slower acceleration, slower steering and slower braking."

TDOT and the THP remind motorists to dial *THP from any cellular phone should they become stranded or need assistance when on the road.

Department of Safety Commissioner Dave Mitchell added, "Tennessee Highway Patrol Troopers are ready to assist those who need help on the road, but the best way a motorist can help is to be prepared before hitting the road by properly maintaining your vehicle, clearing your windshield of ice and snow and making sure your tires are road ready."

When snow hits Tennessee, TDOT maintenance crews will focus on clearing interstates and heavily traveled state routes first, specifically targeting areas vulnerable to freezing, like hills curves, ramps, bridges and interchanges.

"When our crews hit the road, it's important for motorists to use caution around snowplows," said TDOT Maintenance Director Greg Duncan. "Make sure you maintain a safe distance and don't tailgate or stop too close to a snowplow. They are usually spreading salt or brine from the back of the truck and those materials can damage vehicle paint."

TDOT currently has nearly 200,000 tons of salt and more than 1.6 million gallons of salt brine ready for use. The department dedicates more than $12.6 million a year to snow and ice removal operations across the state. During a typical snow event, crews begin by first apply anti-icing brine to roadways.

DAILY EDITION Special Edition • Page 11

Sand, salt and calcium chloride may then be used to remove any accumulating snow and ice.

TDOT also monitors roadway conditions through the Roadway Information System (RWIS). The department has 37 RWIS stations statewide. The stations monitor a variety of weather related factors such as air temperatures; dew-point; wind speed/direction; precipitation types and rates; and asphalt temperatures. The system alerts TDOT maintenance supervisors when freezing conditions are imminent.

All Tennesseans can monitor roadway conditions before leaving home by visiting the Tennessee 511 website at www.tn511.com or by dialing 511 from any land line or cellular phone.

"It's important to plan ahead before you leave the house," Nicely added. "So before you leave home, ask yourself, if it's snowing should I be going?"
