Wireless

said Jack Brundige, director of sales for U.S. Cellular in Tennessee. "A cell phone can be used for safety, gathering information and capturing special moments."

Having a cell phone with you in your car can be essential for safety reasons. In an emergency, you can use your phone to dial 9-1-1 or another local emergency number.

Your phone can also be a useful tool to get you where you're going. U.S. Cellular offers hundreds of useful applications through its easyedgeSM enhanced wireless data service. Customers can download driving directions from Rand McNally Traffic and weather information on AccuWeather® directly to their cell phones.

Brundige offers some other wireless road tips for travelers:

- * If you need to dial a number, pull off the road in a safe location. Never take notes while driving.

- * Do not use data functions such as a text messaging or web browsing while driving.

- * Be aware of potential safety hazards on the road. Don't make calls in heavy traffic or hazardous weather conditions.

- * Position your phone within easy reach and be familiar with the operation of your phone. Make use of the speed-dial and redial features whenever possible. That means pre-programming important numbers into your phone before you leave for your trip. Other options include hands-free devices like Bluetooth.

- * Do not engage in emotional conversations that may divert your attention from the road.

- * Keep calls brief. Do not spend long intervals of time on your wireless phone while you are driving. The more time you spend on the phone, the less time you are concentrating on your driving.

Your cell phone can help you make the most of your weekend in other ways as well. Many phones are equipped with camera phones so you can use programs like Webshots 4.0 to take a picture of your huge catch after a day of fishing. You can find grilling recipes and tips using easyedgeSM. If you're worried about missing the big game, programs like Fox Sports Mobile Pro can help you keep track of every play. Summer movie season also starts this weekend, and you can get the latest information on your phone using the MovieGoerTM application.

U.S. Cellular is the nation's sixth-largest wireless service carrier, providing service to six million customers in 26 states. The Chicago-based company employs 8,000 associates and operates on a customer satisfaction strategy, meeting customer needs by providing a comprehensive range of wireless products and services, superior customer support, and a high-quality network.
