Fishing with Pap-paw Gus

Well it finally happened, Gus is now a Pap-paw, my Daughter gave birth to a 5.2 pound baby boy on Wednesday. It was truly amazing, as soon as some-that I even cancelled my Thursday night fishing trip. Is it normal to feel this way or is it just in my head? I know that I don't need to feel like this for to long because somebody has got to teach this poor little fella how to fish and I hope its me, because his other pap-paw is a bass fisherman and I can't stand the thought of him being trained with artificial baits, to miss the fun of a real worm and minnow, I hope that his first word is catfish and the only time he mentions a bass is in reference to using it as bait. Anyway, don't forget to go down below Ft. Loudoun Dam Saturday at 4pm to see the catfish being weighed at the tournament, should be some monsters over 50 pounds, maybe bigger.

U.S. Cellular offers travel safety tips for 4th of July

According to a study released by the Insurance Institute of Highway Safety, 40 percent more accidents occur on Independence Day than on an average day. Holiday drivers can reduce this statistic and travel safely by following a few, basic tips while on the road. U.S. Cellular suggests three safety tips for drivers that can help prevent accidents on the roads during the holiday season.

"Planning and preparation can go a long way to ensure a safe road trip during the fourth of July," said Jack Brundige, director of sales for U.S. Cellular in Tennessee. "And if used responsibly, cell phones can be an excellent tool to help drivers arrive safely at their destination."

Brundige offers the following tips for drivers planning an Independence Day outing:

Hit the road fully charged. A fully-charged cell phone can come in handy in an emergency and also can be used to call ahead for road and weather conditions. For long trips, U.S. Cellular recommends purchasing a car charger, which allows the cell phone to be plugged into the car power adapter.

Focus on the road in front of you. Try to avoid distracting behavior such as eating, talking on a cell phone, manipulating the stereo or air conditioning, or turning around to the rear of the car while driving. If drivers need to use their cell phone, U.S. Cellular encourages them to pull off the road to take or place a phone call. Headsets and hands-free kits, which allow drivers to talk on the phone while also keeping their hands on the wheel, are helpful, especially for long trips.

Plan ahead and take your time. Allow plenty of time to reach your destination, especially during the summer when construction zones and traffic jams can add delays. By allowing extra time, the temptation to speed or tailgate other drivers is reduced. U.S. Cellular suggests that holiday drivers plan for traffic and allow at least one extra hour of drive time.

Today's cell phones have high-tech features that can aid drivers when documenting an accident scene. Many auto insurance companies recommend taking photos at an accident scene and camera phones mean drivers can document license plates and insurance information. Drivers can place calls to police officers, medical personnel and family members in the moments immediately following an accident without leaving the scene. The phone's notepad feature also can be used to enter other details of the accident, reducing the risk of losing or misplacing the information.

Fourth of July is a busy and hazardous time on roadways, but a little bit of planning and the right tools can help to make any Independence Day road trip safe and enjoyable.

U.S. Cellular is the nation's sixth-largest wireless service carrier, providing wireless service to six million customers in 26 states. The Chicago-based company employs 8,000 associates and operates on a customer satisfaction strategy, meeting customer needs by providing a comprehensive range of wireless products and services, superior customer support, and a high-quality network.
