Stupid Criminals

An Australian man accused of murdering his wife can't seem to get his story straight. June Mathew, John Rushton's second wife, testified that Rushton told her his first wife died of a heart attack, ran off with a Baptist minister after committing 55 acts of adultery, and drowned after being washed overboard. Rushton also claimed he was a nuclear physicist, a naval commander, and had been knighted for saving the Queen's life. Mathew, who was married to Rushton for five years, believed him because he was a "good talker..." but those pesky micro-tremors finally gave him away...

Ionia, Michigan: When two service station attendants refused to hand over the cash to an intoxicated robber, the man threatened to call the police. They still refused, so the robber called the police and was arrested.

(Location Unknown): A criminal who broke into a couple's house started to take the TV, but instead he turned it on and began to watch. He supposedly liked the program that was on and laid down on the bed. Since it was at night he was tired and fell asleep. So when the couple came home the next day they found him and called the police.

ing the river herring. We caught three big coolers full in about six hours. Every single cast, you caught a fish, sometimes two.

It's funny how little things you hear, see or smell will trigger that little mechanism in your brain into remembering stuff. Well how I remembered that trip was due to smell and boy what a smell.

This past Wednesday, John, myself and Chris Vittitoe went Musky fishing at Bull Run Steam Plant. It was a miserable day as far as the weather went, but that told us the fishing should be good. We planned the trip out several weeks in advance and we were set to have a good day, well, sort of set, I might say.

It seems that we needed Gizzard Shad for bait and needed a large cooler to put them in to keep them alive. The cooler I chose had six river herring that were left over from that fall fishing trip. Around five months those dudes sat outside in that cooler. My wife had complained about a stinking smell but I never could seem to find it. If you haven't smelled five month old shad, my advice is to keep it that way.

I loaded the cooler onto my trailer and headed for the dump, the dump wouldn't take it. Said it smelled too bad.

I guess that's a life accomplishment - if you have something that stinks so bad that the dump refuses it. -Gus Ward

Frozen Fruits and Vegetables

During the winter months when fruits and vegetables aren't at their peak, most turn to the freezer aisle to stock up. Remember these tips when shopping for frozen fruits and vegetables this winter:

To control fat and calories, choose frozen plain vegetables or those made with low-fat sauces.

Frozen fruits come in both sweetened and unsweetened varieties, so make sure to check the label.

To help frozen fruit keep its shape, serve while it's still partially frozen.

Frozen fruit bars make a nutritious snack. Read the label to learn if they're made with real fruit juice or flavored water.

Buy fruit and vegetables in loose-pack plastic bags, use what you need and freeze the rest.

Don't let the fact that fruit and vegetables are out of season be an excuse for not getting your fill. (From the American Dietetic Association)
