Wireless

ger limited to face-to-face interactions or phone calls," said Jack Brundige, director of sales for U.S. Cellular in Tennessee. "Now people have many options for staying connected with their significant others."

U.S. Cellular offers these tips to help people successfully navigate the new rules for relationship communication in time for Valentine's Day 2008:

Do use text messaging to make initial contact with a potential love interest. It's a good way to gauge the interest of the other person because it's easier for people to be upfront about their level of interest over a text message. Or, if uninterested, they can simply not reply.

Don't text too soon after meeting someone. Receiving a text the same night could scare off a potential love interest. But don't wait too long if you're interested in meeting for a date.

Do call someone when asking for a date. It's more personal and is the best mode of communication to make a good first impression.

Do send quick flirty texts throughout the day, such as "UR4Me" or "miss u". It lets the other person know they are special.

Don't accidentally send a flirtatious text to your boss. Sending a text to the wrong contact creates an uncomfortable situation for everyone involved.

Do use picture or video messaging to share experiences with your significant other. Sometimes pictures really do speak louder than words.

Don't use text to break up with someone. A face-to-face discussion or phone call is better when a more lengthy conversation is needed.

U.S. Cellular is the nation's sixth-largest wireless service carrier, providing wireless service to six million customers in 26 states. The Chicago-based company employs 8,000 associates and operates on a customer satisfaction strategy, meeting customer needs by providing a comprehensive range of wireless products and services, superior customer support and a high-quality national network.

Sweet as sugar, but not for health

The World Health Organization recommends people all over the world can reduce their risk of obesity by limiting intake of "added sugar" to less than 10 percent of their total calories. How do you calculate added sugars?

You can find added sugars in everything from soups to sauces and the consumption in this country continues to rise. In 1980, the average American consumed about 123 pounds of added sugars per year. By 1999, that amount rose to 158 pounds per person.

Sugar, consumed in moderate amounts, does have its place in a healthful diet. The problem is, sugar can add "empty" calories and displace other, more nutritious foods.

Keep your intake of added sugars low by looking for the following on food labels:

Sugar, whether brown, white, raw or cane; corn syrup or high fructose corn syrup; molasses or honey and fruit juice concentrate wood School, and the adjoining Cherokee Indian Removal Memorial.

"I think the event was a real success because of the TWRA personnel that came to help do anything that needed to be done," said Dan, Hicks, Region III Information and Education Coordinator. "It was the best Crane event in 16 years at the Hiwassee Refuge. A lot of credit needed to go to Manager Jason Jackson. This was his first year after taking over for Wally Akins, and he and his team, Jeff Womac and Lloyd Garrison deserve thanks for a job well done.

"Special thanks go out to all of Area 33, AKA the Tent Brigade, Bernie Swiney and David Shelby from Yuchi WMA. Don King, Lee Wilmot, Todd Maszaros, and Jason Harmon came from the Nashville

Office. Also, to Dave Gabbard, (who traveled) all the way from Region I, and Region III's Billy and Anita Swafford, Kirk Miles, Mark Thurman and Chris Simpson from the Non-Game side, and Sandra Gilmore and Bruce Anderson.

The star of the event each year has been the flock of thousands of migrating sandhill cranes that visit the Hiwassee Refuge from late fall to early spring. Many species of fowled friends were also spotted during the two days. Visitors also had the opportunity to hear presentations by guest speakers. The final days of the event saw very cold temperatures.

The Cherokee-

Crane Days is co-sponsored by the Tennessee Wildlife Federation and TWRA in cooperation with Birchwood School, Cherokee Removal Memorial, Ijams Nature Center, and the Tennessee Aquarium.
