records program.

According to the NWTF, the purpose of the program is to provide hunters throughout the world with a permanent record keeping system that will preserve information on all legally harvested wild turkeys taken in the spirit of fair chase.

Records are kept for Eastern, Florida, Rio Grande, and Merriam's subspecies. The Eastern subspecies is found in Tennessee.

Weight, beard length, and spur length are considered to determine a total score for wild turkeys.

The formula for overall score is:
weight (lbs. and oz.)

plus 10 times spur length (right plus left) plus 2 times the beard length. The beard must be measured, to the nearest 1/16 inch, from the center point of the protrusion from the skin to the end of the longest bristle. Spurs must be measured, to the nearest 1/16 inch, along the outside center, from the point at which the spur protrudes from the scaled leg skin to the tip of the spur. Ounces and fractions of inches need to be converted to decimals.

Persons submitting records must be current members of the NWTF. Hunters may join when the record is submitted.

For rules or an official application form, contact: National Wild Turkey Federation, P.O. Box 530, Edgefield, SC 29824, or check out the NWTF web page at: www.nwtf.org.

Employee

According to records, Carolee Vallery of Man Maid, Highway 11 East, told Deputy Bobby Hamilton, LCSD, an employee she identified was given $1172 in cash on April 11 to buy materials for a job the company was doing and the man was supposed to have worked on the job April 12 and 13, but didn't show up.

Vallery advised the employee didn't show up again on the 14th and another worker, who is the suspect's roommate, said the employee had left for Michigan around 5:00 a.m. that morning.

Records indicate the materials that were supposed to have been bought with the money were never purchased and company owner Jesse Robards has been unable to locate the errant employee to get the money back.

The case is under investigation.

Eat Right...and Get Some Sleep

Along with good nutrition and regular physical activity, adequate rest is a big part of any formula for fitness and health.

When you get a good night's sleep, you feel better and are maximizing brain function and energy levels. But how well you sleep can depend on what you eat.

Consider these tips for the rest of your life:

Have a small meal or snack no less than three hours before going to bed

Eat heavy, high-fat meals for at least four hours before going to bed

Limit your nighttime intake of caffeine from coffee, soft drinks, water and energy drinks

Limit your alcohol intake at night

Drink a cup of warm milk before bed.

While watching what you eat can help, don't avoid food entirely at night. If you go to bed hungry, your body may complain by waking you in the middle of the night.

Regular physical activity will also help you sleep well, since exercise helps the body expend energy during the day and recoup at night. However, avoid exercising within three hours of bedtime because that, too, can keep you awake.
