was dispatched to Ft. Loudon ER on some subjects causing a disturbance. The officer had placed a female subject under arrest for public intoxication and Mr. Veal started causing a disturbance as she was being put in the police car. Mr. Veal had been released from the hospital for a possible overdose and was very unsteady on his feet and had slurred speech. Officer Jeremy Dishner, LCPD made the arrest.

The female, Monica M. Hensley, 20, of Amberset Drive, Concord, was charged with public intoxication and vandalism.

According to the report, Officer Jeremy Dishner, LCPD was dispatched to Ft. Loudon ER on a disturbance call. The officer made contact with Hensley and she was unsteady on her feet and advised she had been taking prescription medication.

The officer transported her to the jail and while en route she attempted to kick the passenger side window out of the officer's cruiser causing $300 in damage. Officer Jeremy Dishner, LCPD made the arrest.

Lane

Mr. Lane left the residence walking prior to officer's arrival and was found by LCSD behind Greer's in the alleyway. He had a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage on his person and was unsteady on his feet. He also had a beer with him.

Foster Herbert Lane III, 48, homeless, was charged with aggravated assault by domestic violence and public intoxication. Officer Blake Norman, LPD made the arrest.

Roberts

tic. Upon arrival the officer could overhear a female screaming at someone inside the residence.

When the deputy went inside the residence he made contact with Suzanne Roberts and a male sitting on the couch and Suzanne was standing next to the victim screaming at him. The officer asked if everything was okay and Suzanne became verbally combative yelling at the male and the deputy.

The deputy escorted the male outside to talk with him and he advised Suzanne had been drinking since that morning and when she gets drunk, she become very abusive. The officer asked if there was a history of violence and the male stated yes in Indiana, she had been arrested twice for the same situation.

The officer asked what happened and the male stated she came home with another 12 pack of beer and she started to become combative, slapped him in the face, and he went outside to get away from her she followed him and she fell on the back deck, causing her to cut her elbow.

The victim further stated when he was eating supper, she threw a bowl of potato salad at him and he had already cleaned the mess up prior to the officer's arrival. The victim stated Suzanne had a lot to drink and broke the living room window out. He advised the officer she had a drinking problem and when she drinks heavily, she gets very combative.

Suzanne was transported to the ER to have her elbow looked at and then transported to jail. Deputy Deland, LCSD made the arrest.

Shaking the Salt Habit

Need to watch your salt intake? Are you one of the 39 percent of Americans who have high-normal or high blood pressure? Since high-salt eating is linked to high blood pressure, you're smart to choose and prepare foods with less salt.

But what if you like salty tastes? Then try to retrain your taste buds. The less salt you eat, the less you'll want. After all, you weren't born loving salty tastes. You learned it, so you can unlearn it, too. Taste before you shake today; a dish may not need more salt.

If food needs a flavor lift:

Pep it up with pepper. Chili peppers or hot pepper sauces come in different degrees of "hot."

Add a splash of vinegar. Herbed, balsamic, wine, or rice vinegar give a flavor spark to sauces, soups, and salads.

Use MSG for flavor with one-third the sodium in the same amount of salt.

Shake on a salt-free herbal blend.
