souped up station wagon that she use to drive to church. Was the only place she would drive the car and trust me, when you rode with her you were thankful that church was your destination and you were hopeful God would see to it that you made it. That old lady drove 120 from the time she left the driveway till she hit the gravel parking lot at the church.

Heck, I remember seeing her husband doing Hail Mary's and he's not even Catholic.

When she tore the rear end out of the car last year, her husband, Mr. Santese, made her sell the car. Walter jumped at the opportunity to get the station wagon. He put that motor on his pontoon boat and him and Toad built a special prop that would make that pontoon boat do a wheelie out of the hole.

At our club meeting last week, Roger started bragging about his new custom-built super fast boat and he was willing to bet anybody anything to prove it.

Now by this time, Walter was squirming in his seat something fierce and I knew he was biting his tongue. He looked over at Toad and saw Toad smiling and then he winked. That was all it took, Walter jumped up and said you have a bet!

That was the longest Catfish meeting in the history of the sport.

Three hours those old codgers argued about the details of the race; well not the race itself, but the bet.
