Tennesseans Advised to Take Precaution to Prevent Hypothermia, Frostbite

Nashville, - The Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency advises Tennesseans to take precaution to prevent hypothermia and frostbite as they enjoy hunting, fishing, wildlife watching and other activities outside this winter.

Hypothermia is a life-threatening condition that causes the body's core temperature to drop. When the temperature dives, some people who can not easily regulate their temperature, such as infants and the elderly, are at increased risk of hypothermia.

Possible symptoms of hypothermia in adults include shivering, confusion, memory loss, drowsiness, exhaustion and slurred speech. Infants who are suffering from hypothermia may appear to have very low energy and bright red,

Wazzup

It's great to see you back at Chili's, Bree!

Horoscopes Capricorn

(Dec 22-Jan 20)

See if you can keep your workplace from exploding with tension today -- people are much more difficult to work with, but that just means you'll look that much better when you pull it off!

(see Horoscopes pg. 2)

Horoscopes

Aquarius

(Jan 21-Feb 19)

Assert your independence from your boss, mate or friends today -- without cutting all ties, of course! It may be completely inside your own mind, as long as you don't feel too constrained by outside forces.

Pisces

(Feb 20-Mar 20)

You've got some seriously strange ideas bubbling up inside today -- and at least one of them is just about perfect for putting into action! You may need to get a serious reality check before this evening.

Aries

(Mar 21-Apr 20)

Try not to worry about minor conflicts that arise today -- your good energy should help you make the most of them and they don't signal anything more serious than a temporary blip.

Taurus

(Apr 21-May 20)

You get all riled up over someone's declaration that you know to be false or at least misleading -- but it's not the best time to convince others you're right. You may need to let time do it for you.

Gemini

(May 21-June 21)

Try to get your people to chill out today -- you need them to relax and they need some down time even if they don't realize it yet. Keep the conversation light and airy and don't focus on the dark stuff.

Cancer

(Jun 22-Jul 22)

You sometimes act on impulse instead of thinking every move through and today brings a strong desire to jump ahead of yourself somewhat. Go for it -- you need to take a chance today!

Leo

(Jul 23-Aug 23)

Almost nothing is impossible today -- thanks in part to your deep belief in yourself. Even if you feel humble -- a fine trait -- you still can tell that you haven't come close to reaching your limits yet.

Virgo

(Aug 24-Sep 23)

Do your best to keep a low profile today -- your energy isn't quite in sync with the rest of the world and almost anything you say could be used against you. Focus on personal issues, if you can.

Libra

(Sept 24-Oct 23)

Your social life hits a big upswing and you find it more rewarding than ever to hang out with new people. Keep active with them, if possible -- you don't want to lay down roots just yet!

Scorpio

(Oct 24-Nov 22)

Your ego isn't exactly on the line today, but you might feel a bit smushed by annoying or rude people. Try to just grin and bear it -- escalating into a conflict isn't a good idea at all.

Sagittarius

(Nov 23-Dec 21)

If you're traveling or just about ready to leave, you couldn't have picked a better time. If you're stuck in town, you may want to do the next best thing and lay the groundwork for a big future adventure.

Precautions

cold skin.

Hypothermia is usually classified into two types, chronic and acute. Chronic hypothermia occurs over a long period of time. It results from exposure to wind and wetness combined with exhaustion. Acute hypothermia is the type waterfowl hunters and fishermen might encounter. Acute hypothermia occurs when one falls into cold water.

Frostbite is another cold weather concern and is especially dangerous because it often happens with little warning. Numbness can occur so quickly that the individual, unaware of being frostbitten, may remain outside, increasing the chance of permanent damage. Older persons, and those with diabetes, are especially vulnerable to frostbite because of impaired circulation.

When outside, persons should frequently check exposed areas of their body for loss of feeling and other danger signs. To prevent frostbite and hypothermia, it is important to dress warmly in windproof clothing and to go indoors when you begin to feel cold. Wearing several layers of loose-fitting clothing traps body heat. Fasten buttons or zippers and tighten drawstrings securely. Gloves and a hat that covers the ears should not be forgotten.

The outer layer of clothing needs to be tightly woven to reduce body-heat loss caused by wind. As the speed of wind increases, it can carry heat away from the body faster. In high wind conditions, cold weather-related health problems are much more likely.

Cold weather puts an extra burden on the heart. Persons with cardiac problems or high blood pressure should follow doctor's orders before performing any strenuous exercise outside.

Healthy adults should remember that their bodies already are working overtime just to stay warm, so dress appropriately and work slowly when doing heavy outdoor chores. Alcoholic beverages cause the body to lose heat more rapidly. If you are spending time outside, do not ignore shivering, it is an important first sign that the body is losing heat and a signal to quickly return indoors.

TWRA recommends that all Tennesseans should take a first aid class before going into the field to learn how to take care of the first stages of hypothermia, frostbite and other life threatening situations.
