could be found at the residence. He was also advised Mr. Flachbart had the title to the 4-wheeler but it was not his.

Upon arrival Detective Upton talked to Mrs. Caroline Flachbart and advised her they were there to check on a 4-wheeler that was allegedly sold to them by Jeremy Palmer and it might be stolen.

Mrs. Flachbart produced a title for a Honda 4-wheeler. The title had the owner as being Mr. George Drudge from Maryville. The title also had a lien holder by the name of GE Money Bank. The title showed it had not been released. Mr. Flachbart's name was not on the title.

During the investigation Mrs. Flachbart gave the detectives permission to check a building located behind the house for the 4-wheeler. She called her husband and he agreed it was OK. He also stated he did get a 4-wheeler from Jeremy Palmer and paid him $1600 for it and he was also to do some work on Mr. Palmer's vehicles.

Upon further investigation Detectives Upton and Smith located a Honda Rancher 4-wheeler that was confirmed stolen from Maryville.

The case is ongoing at this time and Loudon County CID and Blount County Sheriff's Department will be conducting interviews with all persons involved. Charges are pending.

Season

promising for gobbler hunters, according to the Tennessee Wildlife Resources Agency.

Tennessee's turkey restoration project has proven to be a success since it was implemented. After years of record harvests which peaked with the number harvested in 2006, the numbers have decreased each of the past two years. However, sportsmen can take comfort that there is no evidence of decline in the state's turkey population.

"The typical Tennessee spring harvest consists of just fewer than 90 percent mature gobblers and about 10 percent jakes which tell us that our turkey population is healthy," said Gray Anderson, TWRA Turkey Program Coordinator. "Our summer brood surveys in 2007 and '08 were in line with our long term average which is good given the 2007 drought. Given the good brood production in 2007 and the recent mild winters, there is expectation we will continue excellent gobbler harvest."

Another contributing factor to the lower numbers was inclement weather each of the past two years on the opening weekend. In 2007, there was the record cold spell and last year there were storms throughout the state.

Tennessee's 2009 statewide spring turkey season runs from Saturday, March 28 through May 10. All Tennessee counties are open to wild turkey hunting including Wildlife Management Areas and refuges unless specifically listed. For specifics, sportsmen should check the 2008 Tennessee Hunting and Fishing Guide which is available at any TWRA Regional Office, license agent or online at www.tnwildlife.org.

The statewide young sportsman hunt was March 21-22 with 994 turkeys reported harvested. Greene County was the top harvest county with 39 turkeys while Dickson County, the top county for the spring season overall last year, was second with 31 and Giles County was third with 30.

a breath test. He blew a .08%.
