Spike strips deployed to stop reckless driver in high speed pursuit

Suspect forces passing motorist onto strip, flees

When Roane County authorities notified local officers of a high speed pursuit headed towards Loudon County, officers with the Loudon County Sheriff's Office deployed spike strips in an effort to stop the offending driver, who swerved and caused a passing motorist to hit the spike strip instead. Armstrong

According to the warrant, on Tuesday, May 5, 2009, at approximately 8:23 p.m., Roane County Sheriff's Office advised Loudon County 911 they were in pursuit of a green Jeep Cherokee. The driver was identified as Matthew D. Armstrong.

Armstrong was reportedly traveling in excess of 100 mph on Interstate 40 east bound, heading towards Knox County.

Investigator AJ Yokely and Deputy Shane Ezell, LCSO

were at the 369 exit (Watt Road) waiting to deploy the Stinger Spike Strip System in an attempt to stop the pursuit or at least to slow down the Jeep Cherokee.

According to Investigator Yokely, when he spotted the speeding vehicle the driver was traveling approximately 115 m.p.h. As the lawman deployed the spike strips Armstrong swerved his vehicle at a high rate of speed in an attempt to avoid the spike strips, almost striking a white Nissan Maxima.

Armstrong's reckless driving caused the woman driving the Nissan to swerve to keep from getting hit by Armstrong's Jeep Cherokee, which caused her to hit the spike strips. She told officers she was in fear for her safety and the safety of her mother.

Armstrong was later apprehended in Knox County.

Deputy Kimber W. Littleton, LCSO made the arrest at the Roane County Jail Monday.
