member exactly where you were and what you were doing at 11:40 on November 22, 1963 when he was assassinated by Lee Harvey Oswald. Since that day many conspiracy theories have evolved. Richard F. Cross, former CIA officer, has developed his own conclusions in two books he has authored. He provides the reader details of events and people (some you may not have heard of before). The questions have circulated for years: Did Oswald act alone? Was he the only assassin present that day in Dallas, Texas? Was an organization or foreign country involved? As February's guest speaker at the Post 256 breakfast meeting he explained to the American Legion members, "in my books I give you the facts from known sources and from my exhaustive research of reexamining the facts; which included reading the entire Warren Commission Report." New alternatives to Twitter, Google, Facebook rapidly emerging: These sites won't censor you

Are you hooked on social media or use it to promote your business or cause, but are sick and tired of the Left-wing tyrannical censorship of either your posts or those of real news organizations that Facebook, Twitter, Google, Yahoo and others have arbitrarily deemed "fake?"

Never fear. There are alternatives already out there, with more on the way. Besides that, these current and forthcoming sites are true free speech zones where you can say and post what you want, without the fear that it will be censored by the communist nannies who run those other "mainstream" sites.

GoodGopher.com
Launched last year by Mike Adams, the Health Ranger and founder/editor of NaturalNews, this alternative media-friendly search engine has been growing in popularity ever since. GoodGopher.com is Adams' attempt to build the Internet's largest search engine for those looking to find information and news about liberty, natural healing, central banks, food freedom, advanced legitimate science and several other topics that are not allowed in search sites controlled by zealous, censoring Leftists working with the NSA.

GoodGopher is the world's first search site that is privacy-protected and which filters out corporate media propaganda and government misinformation. The site:

- Will never spy on users
- Includes no corporate/government propaganda disguised as "news" and "information"
- Features an "Honest Relevancy Algorithm" that is applied and weighted equally across all sites, playing no favorites or blocking legitimate reporting and science from independent sources
- Never includes any promotion of Big Pharma or other toxins/poisons
- Is not corporate-owned

And if you're an independent media owner or journalist, you can submit your own sites to be indexed by GoodGopher's search algorithms.

GAB.ai
Developed by free-speech advocate Andrew Torba, GAB.ai is a Twitter-style network that combats censorship by allowing users to post whatever they want, saying what they want and expressing themselves as they want.

"If I had to pick a single event that pushed me over the edge to take action, I would have to say it was the suppression of conservative sources and stories by the incredibly biased Facebook Trending Topics team," Torba said in an interview with Charlie Nash of Breitbart News.

Right now the site is very much in its beta form and there is a waiting list of at least 186,955 after this writer signed up to join. So clearly, as the site gains more attention and the focus on free, unlimited Jimmy Matlock is the owner of Matlock Tire, which is in its 65th year in business, with locations in Farragut, Maryville, Lenoir City, and Athens. He has served as a State Representative, representing most of Loudon and Monroe counties since 2006. He and his wife, Dean, reside in Lenoir City and have three children – Lindsay, Joe, and Reagan.

UT

Department of Audit and Compliance notified the Comptroller’s Office of possible discrepancies.

Investigators determined the director of sports surface management violated university policy when he accepted at least two paid trips and related entertainment from a department vendor which had previously been awarded an equipment lease worth $763,898. In 2016, the director traveled to Illinois for two days of golf, and he also participated in a golf scramble in Georgia. The vendor provided lodging, air fare (when applicable), green fees, and other privileges. This violated UT’s policy prohibiting university employees from accepting entertainment or other gifts exceeding $75 in value.

The director was also absent from work during a two-day trip to the Masters Golf Tournament in April 2016. Although the director reimbursed a prospective vendor for his event pass, he failed to record two days of leave on his university time records.

In 2014, two current UT athletics department employees attended one day of the Masters Golf Tournament as guests of a potential vendor that was actively marketing its product to the university. This trip also violated the university’s policy prohibiting the acceptance of gifts or entertainment exceeding $75 in value.

Investigators also determined the athletics department had placed restrictive mandatory requirements on its request for quotation (RFQ) to purchase or lease

“The University of Tennessee may wish to consider annual or periodic employee training related to its gift acceptance policy,” said Comptroller Justin P. Wilson. “Officials should not engage in actions which might result in, or create the appearance of, private gain or preferential treatment.”

speech grows, so, too, will GAB.ai.

Seen.life

Another social media site that continues to grow because of its dedication to free speech and privacy is Seen.life. Its creators vow to never gather and/or sell users' personal information, and “we don't let search engines data mine your posts if you want to make that choice,” the site notes. Creators also want users to know that once they delete a post on Seen.life, it's gone, because they don't retain it.

The site also features “Unity,” a “reward token” redeemable on Seen.life that is built for sharing elsewhere as well. You can also chat live and get free Internet calling.

Adams says that's not all.

“We will be launching a YouTube alternative before the end of this year,” he noted, giving users an alternative to the censorship that takes place on Twitter (which banned Breitbart Tech editor Milo Yiannopoulos, a gay, vocal supporter of President-elect Trump and a strident conservative).

“The Internet is rapidly fracturing, polarizing into two separate universes. On the left side, rooted in delusion and censorship, you have Google, Facebook, Twitter and YouTube,” said Adams, noting that NaturalNews.com is one of the sites targeted in recent assaults on free speech. “On the right, you have respect for free speech, intelligent discourse and practical problem solving to contribute to a better society.”
