Ways to Prevent Summer Learning Loss in Tennessee

After the school year ends, it's important to keep your child's mind active and sharp during summer break. Without reading and learning in the summer, children can lose as much as 30 percent of what they learned during the school year. By the end of fifth grade, that can mean the loss of three years of learning.

Once a student falls behind, it becomes even harder to catch up. That's why it's critical for kids to keep learning in the summer months.

Here are some ways in Tennessee to keep your child reading and learning over the summer:

Honors Interns

10-Week Summer Program Offers Working Introduction to the FBI

The FBI selected about 700 new honors interns from a pool of 15,000 applicants. The interns will be assigned to work at FBI Headquarters, the Bureau's research and laboratory facilities at Quantico, Virginia, and in each of the FBI's 56 field offices around the country.

Hundreds of college students and recent graduates raised their right hands today and took an oath promising to support and defend the U.S. Constitution, thus beginning a 10-week summer intern-

National Prescription Drug Take Back Day National prescription drug take back events highlight the importance of safely disposing medications that are no longer needed or expired. The 15th National Take Back Day was Saturday, April 28, 2018. At the 14th National Take Back Day in October 2017, Tennesseans disposed of more than 68,000 pounds of pills.

Safe At-Home Disposal

Do not flush or pour medications down the drain. Remove medication from original packaging and mix with an undesirable substance such kitty litter or used coffee grounds. Place the mixture in a bag and throw in your trash container. Remove and destroy any personal information on the empty medicine container and recycle the empty container.

Count It! Lock It! Drop It!

Count It! Drop It! Lock It!® is a comprehensive community program for prescription drug abuse prevention that began in Coffee County, Tenn. CLD empowers and educates individuals on how they can help prevent prescription drug misuse by properly counting, locking, or disposing of prescription medications.

Count It! Make it a goal to count your pills once every two weeks. This will prevent theft and help ensure medications are taken properly.

Lock It! Lock up your medications and store them in a secure place that others would not think to look.

Drop It! Drop off your unused or expired medications for proper disposal at drop boxes located in participating law enforcement offices or pharmacies.

Summer

Summer Reading Competition. Elementary school children can get a special reward by reading the most number of minutes over summer break.

All Tennessee children, from rising kindergartners to rising fourth-grade students, can participate. Kids are asked to keep track of their number of minutes read from June 1–July 27. They then can compete for Tennessee’s Top 100 Summer Readers. Students qualify to win a Top 100 Reader spot based on a lottery system.

The students who qualify as Top 100 Summer Readers will be invited to a Kids State Dinner with the Governor and First Lady at the Tennessee Residence in Nashville on Sunday, Aug. 12. One parent or guardian can go to the event with a child. Get more information on the program.

Library programs. Each summer, the state’s public libraries offer fun reading programs for children. From the smallest libraries to the largest systems, there are great programs available for kids of all ages. Many of them are tied to the 2018 statewide theme of Libraries Rock! Here are some of the programs available at libraries across the state:

White County Library: Teen summer reading program on Tuesday nights in July (6 p.m.-7 p.m., July 3-31). More information: 931-836-3613.

Portland Public Library: Separate programs for infants/toddlers, preschoolers and school-age kids in June. Preschoolers and school-aged have programs on three Wednesdays (June 13, 20, 27). Infant/toddlers meet on five Fridays (June 1, 8, 15, 22, 29). More information: 615-325-2279.

Benton County Library: Program for fifth grade and younger on six Fridays in June and July (June 15, 22, 29; July 13, 20, 27). More information: 731-584-4772.

Johnson City Public Library: Variety of programs for children 5 and younger (June 4-July 20) and kids 6-12 (June 4-July 20). More information: 423-434-4458.

Jackson-Madison County Library (main and north branch): Variety of special programs and events for kids and teens (June 2-July 28). More information: 615-741-3915.

Clinton Public Library: Variety of special programs and events for preschool, elementary age and teens (June 4-July 20). More information: 865-457-0519.

Marshall County Memorial Library: “Super Saturday” program offers music-related events at 1 p.m. each Saturday in June (2, 9, 16, 23, 30). More information: 931-359-3335.

To get your children involved in a program, call or visit your local public library. Access the public library directory of Tennessee online.

TN Electronic Library. The Tennessee Electronic Library (TEL) is a free resource for everyone in Tennessee. It’s your 24/7 online library. TEL provides access to magazine, journal, and newspaper articles, essays, practice tests, Ebooks, and more. TEL is available from any computer with access to the internet. Get more information.

More Ways to Encourage Summer Reading

Tennessee’s Imagination Library. Through the Governor’s Books from Birth Foundation (GBBF), all preschool children in Tennessee have the opportunity to enroll in Tennessee’s Imagination Library. Kids receive one book each month in the mail from birth to age 5—a total of 60 books—at no cost to families. You can register a child online by visiting the Governor’s Books from Birth Foundation or by calling 877-99-BOOKS.

Let kids select books. Give your kids the chance to pick out their own books at the library or bookstore. Research from the University of Tennessee shows that children who choose their own books over the summer are more excited about reading. They read more and learn more.

eBooks for Children. Tennessee R.E.A.D.S. is a free online library that contains thousands of electronic books (eBooks) for children. All you need to get eBooks is a library card from your public library and a computer/laptop or a portable device such as a tablet, a smartphone or an eReader. Get more information.

ship with the FBI—and possibly a lifelong career in public service.

The FBI's highly competitive Honors Internship Program, established more than three decades ago, attracted a record 15,000 applicants this year. From that pool of talented young people, only about 700 new interns were selected, along with 300 returning interns, all of whom will be assigned to work at FBI Headquarters, the Bureau's research and laboratory facilities at Quantico, Virginia, and in each of the FBI's 56 field offices around the country.

David Schlendorf, assistant director for the FBI's Human Resources Division, administers the oath of office to members of the Honors Internship Program at FBI Headquarters as they begin a 10-week summer work program at the Bureau.

David Schlendorf, assistant director for the FBI's Human Resources Division, administers the oath of office to members of the Honors Internship Program at FBI Headquarters as they begin a 10-week summer work program at the Bureau.

"The record number of applicants this year shows the extraordinary interest that young people have in the FBI's work and its mission."

- Jacqueline Maguire, acting assistant director, FBI Office of Public Affairs

The interns will be exposed to just about every aspect of the Bureau's law enforcement and national security mission, working alongside agents, intelligence analysts, cyber experts, scientists, linguists, and other professional staff.

"The record number of applicants this year shows the extraordinary interest that young people have in the FBI's work and its mission," said Jacqueline Maguire, acting assistant director of the Office of Public Affairs. "It's clear that the FBI is an employer of choice for college students and recent graduates."

For some of this year's interns, joining the FBI represents a lifelong dream. Bailey, a rising junior at the University of Northern Iowa, said her sights have been set on the FBI "for years."

"I decided FBI, go big or go home," said the biochemistry major, who will spend her summer working in the FBI Laboratory at Quantico. She hopes one day to become a special agent so she can help protect people. "I think that would be a great career path for me."

Other interns are curious about getting an insider's look at the organization to see if the Bureau might be a good career fit. Eric, a student at the University of Virginia pursuing a degree in global studies and security and justice, with a concentration in counterterrorism and criminology, will be working in the Bureau's Operational Technology Division.

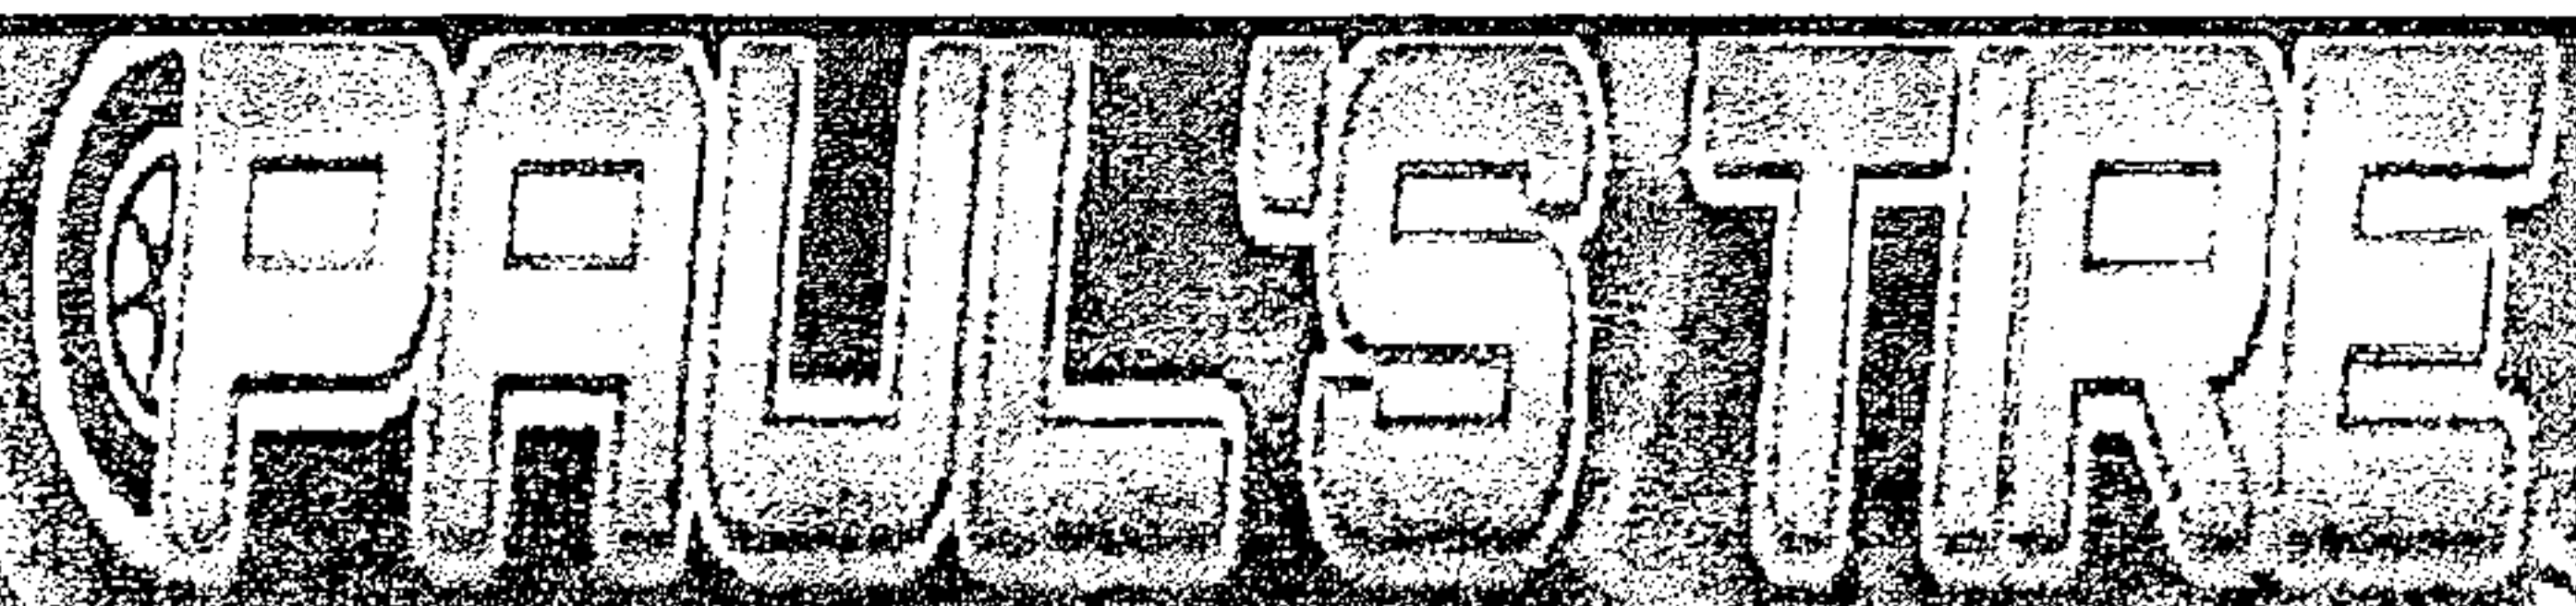

His godfather is an FBI employee, and Eric respects the values he embodies and the work he does. The Honors Internship Program, he said, will give him and the other interns a chance "to figure out if the FBI is right for us and if we're right for the FBI."

PUBLIC NOTICE Lenoir City Board of Education and Lenoir City Council

Money Stolen from Shelby County Elementary School PTO Former Balmoral Ridgeway Elementary PTO President Indicted

An investigation by the Tennessee Comptroller's Office has resulted in the indictment of Tameka Harrison, the former PTO president at Balmoral Ridgeway Elementary School in Shelby County.

The Comptroller's Office began its investigation after Shelby County school officials notified our office about deficiencies in the Parent Teacher Organization. Investigators determined that Harrison used at least $2,486.94 of PTO funds to benefit herself. Harrison utilized the PTO's debit card to make personal purchases at a variety of locations including Walmart, Sam's Club, Amazon.com, and fuel outlets. She also purchased a one-year membership to the Memphis Zoo and made a $450 ATM withdrawal.

Harrison was the only person who had custody of the PTO's debit card during her tenure as PTO president. She left office on May 27, 2017, the last day of school.

During an interview with Comptroller investigators on January 29, 2018, Harrison admitted to using PTO funds for her personal benefit and said she was willing to repay the PTO. Financial records indicate that she has repaid $203.22 to the PTO, leaving an unpaid balance of $2,283.72. School officials should take immediate steps to recover this money from Harrison. In June 2018, Tameka Harrison was indicted by the Shelby County Grand Jury on one count of theft over $1,000.

"Tennessee law requires all school support organizations, such as PTOs, to establish procedures for safeguarding funds," said Comptroller Justin P. Wilson. "This organization should take some basic steps such as maintaining bank deposit slips, reconciling the PTO's bank account, and not letting one person collect and deposit all funds."
