When we deal with life, we always seem to have good reasons for why we do things. We go to school to get a job. We get a job to earn a living. We do things for fun, for love or for health. Those reasons we go to for why we do things have a way of becoming our gods

An Oklahoma wom- an had a novel solution to a child custody issue with her ex-husband who lived in Israel: Hire someone to travel there and kill him using the deadly toxin ricin she manufactured in her kitchen.

But fortunately, the woman who re- sponded to Danielle Dana Layman's on- line posting for what was advertised as an overseas acting job soon learned the real purpose of Layman's offer and reported the plot to the FBI. And

Ricin

Layman, originally indicted in 2017 on a murder-for-hire charge, was subsequently charged with the unlawful possession of ricin and ended up pleading guilty to that charge earlier this year. She was sentenced this past June to a federal prison term.

It all started back in May 2017, when Layman posted an ad: "For production overseas, looking for talent, 30-45 years old. Doesn't have to be a professional actor. Required: Creative, outgoing and friendly, positive personality, boldness and bravery (some stunts may seem risky, although they are completely safe) ..." The ad went on to say that "... you must not disclose any information related to this plot to ANYONE under ANY CIRCUMSTANCES ..."

The woman who responded to the ad agreed to an in-person meeting with Layman, who was using a fake name. At this meeting, Layman divulged a different purpose for the trip—claiming to be from Israeli intelligence, she told the woman that she wanted to have an ISIS operative killed. Using a laptop she brought to the meeting, Layman showed her an entire presentation containing instructions on what she was being asked to do, what she should pack, how she would travel to Israel, where she would stay once she got there, and how she should communicate. Layman also showed her a package that she claimed contained ricin.

According to Oklahoma City Assistant Special Agent in Charge Raul Bujanda, who oversaw the FBI's investigation, "The woman answering the ad left the meeting with Layman—after taking pictures of what she was shown—and immediately reached out to a lawyer friend for advice on what to do. She was very concerned about what Layman had asked her to do."

The lawyer advised contacting the FBI, which the woman did. Said Bujanda, "She called the Bureau's Public Access Line on May 9, 2017, the same day as her meeting with Layman. And the Oklahoma City FBI office opened an investigation shortly afterward."

After conducting a number of interviews and taking other investigative steps, the Bureau was able to quickly verify the woman's story, uncover the real identity of the person she had met with, determine that the target of the plot was actually the plotter's ex-husband, and obtain proof that Layman was the one who had placed the online ad. "In addition," said Bujanda, "we were able to determine that Layman was in a custody dispute with her ex-husband, and that during a recent trip Layman had taken to Israel with her children, the man had filed a court suit demanding visitation rights."

On June 30, 2017, federal agents executed a search warrant at Danielle Layman's residence in Ponca City, Oklahoma. "Because of the potential for ricin being present," explained Bujanda, "included among those executing the warrant were hazard-

Money

Barry Hardin, 32, McKee street Greenville, was charged with Driving on Revoked License, Money Laundering, Unlawful Carry or Poss. Of Weapon, and Financial Responsibility.

Deputy Brannum was given Warrants on Mr. Barry Hardin. Mr. Hardin was identified by his social and date of birth and was served with Financial Responsibility, Unlawful Carry or Possession of a Weapon, Driving on Revoked License, and Money Laundering. This did occur in the Loudon County Jail in Loudon County, TN.

ous materials specialists from the FBI Laboratory and a number of Bureau field offices."

Included in the cache of items taken from Layman's residence were about 100 castor beans (from which ricin is derived), a mortar and pestle, and printed ricin instructions that contained residue from the making of ricin. The collected evidence was analyzed by the FBI Laboratory.

Layman was arrested shortly after the search. At her sentencing hearing, the federal judge assigned to the case made note of the fact that Layman manufactured the ricin in the kitchen of her family's home while she was pregnant and while her second husband and children were living in the house. Said Bujanda, "When we collected the mortar and pestle used to make the ricin, we saw that it was well within reach of the children."

There's no telling what sort of harm could have occurred had Layman been able to solicit the help of an individual willing to carry out her plan in exchange for a few thousand dollars. "But because of the bravery of one woman willing to come forward and notify law enforcement when she learned of possible criminal activity," Bujanda said, "we were able to mitigate a threat to people's lives."

if we trust in them to give us life. Yet, often the very things we seek after for security end up accusing us, judging us and condemning us to death.

Jesus offers us something quite different -- he give us himself to eat. He promises us that he will deal with our lives by using mercy and resurrection. Yes, he dies to do that for us, and then he rises from death too! Where shall we go to find such a reason for what we do that raises us from death? Where shall we go to find relief from judgment and death? We go to Jesus, our crucified and risen Lord -- and we are not disappointed. Prayer: Father of Life, fill our hearts with Jesus, so that he becomes the reason we do things. Let him be our God, our forgiver, the one who raises us from death. Let us live as those who forgive. Amen.
