Tennessee State Museum Partners with Tenement Museum on Your Story, Our Story Initiative

The Tennessee State Museum, through a partnership with the Tenement Museum in New York City, invites Tennesseans throughout the state to share personal stories of cultural identity, American immigration and migration through their everyday objects. Your Story, Our Story, is a national initiative of the Tenement Museum and its partners across the United States. It works with museums, colleges, schools, libraries, and community groups who all contribute stories from their part of the United States, with the goal of uncovering the patterns and differences of our experiences

Theft

Jacob Henderson, 31, Whitower Drive Knoxville, was charged with Burglary of a Motor Vehicle, and Theft of Property. Officer J. Pistole LCPD, was dispatched to West Broadway in reference to a suspicious vehicle and person on the property. Sgt. Rayfield was first on scene and made contact with a black male who was later identified as Jacob Henderson. Henderson stated that he had stopped to look at a truck that was in the parking lot, that was in the process of being restored. The truck was a red F150 with no bed. The owner was notified and was called to scene because Officer noticed in plain view a box of parts in the passenger side of the vehicle Henderson was driving to see if it was part of the belonged to the truck being restored. The owner confirmed that the items were his that went to the truck he was restoring. The title to the truck was located in Henderson vehicle that was originally in the truck's glove box that was being restored. After an investigation Jacob Henderson was placed under arrest and transported to the Loudon County Jail.

TennCare

A Lewisburg woman is charged with TennCare fraud for allegedly selling pills which were obtained using benefits of TennCare, the state's healthcare insurance program.

The Office of Inspector General (OIG) today announced the arrest of Melissa Culwell of Marshall County, Tennessee. The arrest is the result of a joint effort with the Smithville Police Department, the DeKalb County Sheriff's Department, and the Marshall County Sheriff's Department. Culwell is charged with one count of knowingly selling drugs she obtained through the use of her boyfriend's TennCare benefits. The case is being prosecuted by District Attorney Robert J. Carter of Marshall County, TN. "Part of the mission of the Office of Inspector General is to prevent people from using their TennCare benefits to sell drugs on the streets of Tennessee communities," Inspector General Kim Harmon said. "We strive to ensure that taxpayer money is being used Museum across the country. Users can explore stories from across the country, upload a story that carries meaning in your family, and join the Tenement Museum and Tennessee State Museum, in telling the stories of American migration and cultural identity.

A Tennessee State Museum-specific portal is now available through the State Museum's website at TN-Museum.org. Images and stories submitted either through the portal, or connected to Tennessee through the main site at Yourstory.Tenement.org will appear on the portal.

"As a collecting institution and public history museum, we believe strongly that objects tell stories," says Ashley Howell, executive director of the Tennessee State Museum. "Our collection is not only filled with artifacts, it is filled with thousands of stories that collectively aim to tell Tennessee's story. The work of the Tenement Museum is gathering America's stories of cultural identity is inspiring. We're excited to collect Tennessee's part in that story."

About Your Story, Our Story

Your Story, Our Story contributions come from all kinds of families and all kinds of histories: from people who were adopted, people whose families are indigenous to the Americas; people who were forced to migrate from their home countries; those who are the descendants of enslaved people; and people who are unsure of their cultural heritage. Each story helps to deepen our understanding of this country and its people, and when combined together, highlights complexities, commonalities, and differences, fostering empathy through the power of storytelling. During the Tennessee State Museum exhibition of Let's Eat! Origins and Evolutions of Tennessee Food, visitors to the website are especially encouraged to upload images and stories of recipes, cookware, dinnerware, ingredients and more that relate to culinary traditions and carry meaning in their families.

TennCare ctd. from P. 3 properly and that people are held accountable for their actions.” Investigators say Culwell signed for and picked up a prescription for 120 tablets of the painkiller Percocet which had been prescribed for her boyfriend. Agents say Culwell knew the pills were provided through her boyfriend’s Medicare and Medicaid benefits. Culwell subsequently admitted to selling the drugs on the street and keeping the profits for herself.

TennCare Fraud is a Class D felony. If convicted, Culwell could face penalties of up to a maximum of 12 years in prison. The OIG, which is separate from TennCare, began full operation in February 2005 and has investigated cases leading to more than $3 million being repaid to TennCare, with a total estimated cost avoidance of more than $163.6 million for TennCare, according to latest figures. To date, 3,123 people have been charged with TennCare fraud. Through the OIG Cash for Tips Program established by the Legislature, Tennesseans can get cash rewards for TennCare fraud tips that lead to convictions. Anyone can report suspected TennCare fraud by calling 1-800-433-3982, toll-free or by logging on to www.tn.gov/oig/ and following the prompts that read “Report TennCare Fraud.”
