Assault

Andrew Bright, 38, Bright Road Philadelphia, was charged with Aggravated Assault, Poss. Of Drug Para., and Mfg/Del/Sale or Poss. Of Meth. Deputy Marshall Lynn LCSO, was notified of a domestic disturbance ay Bright Road. Deputy arrived on scene and made contact with the victim, who provided a verbal and written statement indicating that she had been staying with Andrew Bright for the last few days. Victim stated sometime that morning Bright confronted her about stealing his pills, pulled a black handgun out and pointed it at her causing her fear of death before she walked down the street on Bright Road. Deputy then made contact with a witness who stated he loaned Bright a black handgun with ammunition approx.. 30 days prior for protection. Witness state Bright had been acting depressed, paranoid, and taking medication recently and has displayed strange behavior. Deputy made contact with Andrew Bright where he was taken into custody at gunpoint. Bright appeared to be under the influence of a foreign substance, he had slow mumbled and slurred speech, and unsteady on his feet. Andrew Bright was placed under arrest and transported to the Loudon County Jail.

The Loudon County Commission will hold a public hearing at 6:00 p.m. on Monday, August 5, 2019, in the boardroom at the Loudon County Courthouse Annex, 101 Mulberry St., Loudon, TN, to receive public comments regarding amending the Zoning Map of Loudon County, TN to rezone approximately 20.18 acres, Parcel 004.00, Tax Map 078, 10616 East Coast Tellico Parkway, in the 3rd Legislative District, from R-1, Suburban Residential District to R-1, Suburban Residential District with Planned Unit Development (PUD) overlay, 2.5 units per acre.

Threat

Homeland Security, contains a broad list of 46 behavioral indicators listed in color-coded groupings of how clearly the indicators might demonstrate an individual's likelihood of engaging in terrorist activity. The booklet updates a prior version published in 2017.

The agencies authored the updated publication to help law enforcement—and the public at large—recognize potentially dangerous behaviors as the U.S. faces a heightened threat from homegrown violent extremists.

“The booklet provides our partners with tools to identify concerning behavior so that it can be responsibly reported to law enforcement,” said Michael McGarrity, assistant director of the FBI's Counterterrorism Division. “We can't be everywhere. We count on our partners to identify threats in their communities.”

The booklet, published on the website of the Office of the Director of National Intelligence, describes each of the behavioral indicators, organized by how easily they can be diagnosed. For example, observing someone prepare a martyrdom video could be diagnosed on its own as a mobilization indicator, while seeing an individual conduct suspicious financial transactions would be considered “minimally diagnostic” and would require other observable indicators to meet a diagnostic threshold.

The publication emphasizes that many of the indicators may involve constitutionally protected activities. But observed together, the behaviors may raise suspicions and merit reporting to authorities.

“It's an indispensable tool in our efforts to leverage all available resources to identify terrorists before they conduct deadly attacks,” said Matthew Alcoke, deputy assistant director of the FBI's Counterterrorism Division.

Other criteria include categories of behaviors, the people who are most likely to observe them, and the time-sensitivity of potential concerns (i.e., imminent, near-term, or long-term).

The booklet encourages people to take a holistic view of situations and to put the mobilization indicators into context.

“It is important to consider the totality of circumstances when observing potential indicators, as some factors may increase the risk of violence in a given situation," the booklet states. Risk factors that may raise additional concerns include a potential subject's inability to cope with change or perceived failures, a history of violence, social isolation, and possession of weapons or explosives.

Last month, a Syrian man living in Pittsburgh was arrested by an FBI Joint Terrorism Task Force on charges related to his alleged plot to bomb a church in the name of ISIS, a foreign terrorist group based in the Middle East. Among other things, the subject allegedly distributed propaganda materials for his cause and recorded a video of himself pledging allegiance to the leader of ISIS — observable mobilization indicators of imminent or near-term concern, according to the indicators booklet.

An FBI analysis shows that in recent years, about one in four internationally inspired terrorism plots here in the U.S. was disrupted with the help of tips from community leaders and the public. Matthew Aken, a special agent in the FBI's Springfield Field Office, said the updated publication is an effective tool for educating the Bureau's partners in law enforcement and the communities where they serve.

It allows our partners to educate themselves concerning extremist behavior," he said, "and assists them to make an informed decision on a potential international terrorism-inspired extremist and how to report it to law enforcement."

made contact with a male matching the description, later identified as Christopher Bingham. A check through NCIC determined that Bingham did have two active Capias out of General Session, and a Violation of Probation out of Sevier County. Bingham began walking away from Deputy. The Deputy told Bingham to stop and he refused, Deputy ask again for Bingham to stop multiple times and he took off running down Hwy 70 towards Kevin Lane.

Bingham was taken to the ground by Deputies, where he did not comply with verbal commands. Bingham was taken into custody and transported to the Loudon Jail.
