Dakota Reavis, 25, Maynard Hill Maynardville, was charged with Burglary and Theft.

Officer Carroll LCPD, was dispatched to Walmart on Hwy 321 N, in Lenoir City for a shoplifting call. Upon my arrival, Officer did make contact with Walmart's AP Office, who advised he observed a white male enter the store wearing an empty black backpack. AP advised that as he observed the male on camera, he observed the male conceal multiple boxes of sports card into his backpack, and then walk over to the electronics, and grab a speaker, and open the packaging, and conceal it into his hoodie pocket, and walk past all points of sales, and exit out the pharmacy side doors. The male was identified as Dakota Allen Reavis. Mr. Reavis had also been previously trespassed from Walmart on October 11, 2023. Due to Mr. Reavis being previously trespassed, and again returning to Walmart with the intent to shoplift, Mr. Reavis was advised he would be charged with Burglary as well. Mr. Reavis did enter Walmart with the intent to deprive Walmart of their merchandise. The total amount of the items totaled $1,017.58. Mr. Reavis was placed into custody, and transported to the Loudon County Jail without any further incident. This incident did occur within Loudon County, TN.

Police beat

Natasha Bibbins, 37, Matlock Alley Philadelphia, was charged with Domestic Assault.

Deputy Hilton and Bengel LCSO, were dispatched to Matlock Alley in reference to a Domestic Assault. Upon arrival, Deputy spoke with Natasha D. Bibbins. Bibbins stated that she was hit in the lip by the victim. Deputy asked Bibbins to explain to him what had happened.

Bibbins stated she was trying to wake up the victim to get him to go to work, however he stated he could not go. Bibbins stated it escalated from asking him over and over again to go to work. Deputy asked Bibbins to explain how the victim hit her but she couldn't tell him. Bibbins said she couldn't remember that she "blacked out" (Bibbins did not lose consciousness but that was her wording to explain that she couldn't remember). Bibbins showed me her lip and she had a superficial tear on the inside. Deputy spoke with the victim, and he advised Bibbins woke him up, telling him to get to work. The victim explained he couldn't, because of his foot that has been swollen for a few days.

The victim advised Bibbins became upset and escalated the argument by choking him. Bibbins stated she was going to kill the victim because he would not go to work. The victim also stated Bibbins punched him, striking his jaw during the altercation. Deputy observed some slight red marks at Schaller's beard line on the left side of his neck.

Deputy asked the victim if he had struck Bibbins and he said that he might have when he attempted to get Bibbins off of him while she was choking him. Deputy determined Bibbins to be the primary aggressor in the altercation and she was transported to the Loudon County Jail, for Domestic Assault.

tober 17 at Oklahoma Christian University featured David Grann, author of "Killers of the Flower Moon: The Osage Murders and the Birth of the FBI," a historical account of the so-called Reign of Terror in Oklahoma in the early 1920s.

Tribal leaders Geoffrey Standing Bear, principal chief of the Osage Nation, and Governor Bill Anoatubby of the Chickasaw Nation, along with the FBI's Edward Gray, joined the author in recounting a long string of murders in Osage County and how the FBI got involved in the investigation.

The special agent in charge of the FBI's Oklahoma City Field Office joined local Native American leaders and the author of a best-selling book about murder on the Osage Nation a century ago for a panel discussion about crime, greed, justice, and the relationship today between the Bureau and Oklahoma's many Indigenous tribes.

"Unquestionably, greed was the driving force. But I would say there was another deeper force at work than just greed," said Grann, whose 2017 book has been turned into a feature film. "For these systemic crimes to have taken place, greed was fused together with a dehumanization of another people. The perpetrators did not look upon their targets as fully embodied humans with souls and dignity."

In the early days of the Bureau of Investigation—which became the FBI—a young J. Edgar Hoover saw the importance of this case for the Bureau to investigate and solve. The FBI has special jurisdiction to investigate violent crimes on Native American land through the federal Major Crimes Act.

The discussion on October 17 at Oklahoma Christian University featured David Grann, left, author of "Killers of the Flower Moon: The Osage Murders and the Birth of the FBI," a historical account of the so-called "Reign of Terror" in Oklahoma in the early 1920s.

Author David Grann (left) on stage with the Osage Nation's Geoffrey Standing Bear and the Chickasaw Nation's Governor Bill Anoatubby.

Investigating crimes, however, can't be accomplished by the FBI alone. The Bureau relies on established partnerships with Native American law enforcement agencies to bring cases to a close. The FBI has 22 Safe Trails Task Forces with over 150 agents investigating crimes committed on about 200 reservations nationwide.

When the panel's moderator suggested the FBI and other federal agencies may still be greeted with suspicion by tribal communities—since federal laws created many of the difficult conditions on reservations—the Osage Nation's Standing Bear chimed in.

"Things have changed, thank God," said Standing Bear, whose tribe has over 20,000 registered members and about 6,800 still living in the Osage Nation's territory in Northern Oklahoma. "We have a working relationship with the FBI and our police. Osage Nation Police works on cases, joint investigations with the FBI. It's a different world now."

Bill Anoatubby, governor of the Chickasaw Nation, agreed.

"It's a mutual respect," he said. "They're there to help us. We need them. So, it's important to have them around. And they've helped us over the years on many, many cases."

Gray said the relationship between Native American tribal leaders and law enforcement is stronger than ever before.

The FBI, he said, will be "in the community, working these crimes with rigor, with the tenacity and the professionalism from the start, and building that trust in the community."

Horoscopes

seriously. Not everyone understands your humor.

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

Self-image could be a difficult issue for you. Perhaps you've painted a false picture of yourself lately. In an effort to cover your insecurity, you may not have expressed how you feel to some people.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

You may feel like there's absolutely nowhere to turn. Reality is a scary thing to face. The last thing you want to do is be serious. But you're finding it difficult to get satisfaction from your fantasy world.

Pisces 2/19-3/20

You have a strong sense of self. You take charge of situations instead of letting them take charge of you. But this sense of independence and self-confidence may threaten other people.

Aries 3/21-4/19

You may feel like a mediator between two camps, or you may be the one in a struggle that needs mediation.

Taurus 4/20-5/20

Be careful about taking everything as a personal offense. Others' inconsiderate actions may hurt you emotionally, but they don't have to.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

Difficult tension may be frustrating for you to handle. You may wonder why everyone can't just get along. The answer may seem simple to you, with your easygoing attitude.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

Tension may arise among friends when someone suddenly feels like an ignored third wheel. People tend to pair up. Do what you can to stay on topics to which everyone can contribute equally.

Leo 7/23-8/22

Your lively, imaginative spirit is in tune with the collective. The need for a worldly consciousness and evolving humanity has become more obvious to you as time goes by.

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Just when you slow down, simplify, and plan, things start to pick up again. Your imagination starts to fly. Stabilization hinders your creative spirit. The last thing your artistic mind wants to do is slow down.

Libra 9/23-10/22

Your sense of play might get you into trouble. This sort of attitude could run up against someone who's trying to stay on task and take things seriously.
