FBI's Underwater Search and Evidence Response Team (USERT)

On the Job
Imagine being immersed underwater. The water is thick and muddy. Your suit is keeping you dry, but the frigid temperatures are making your fingers numb. All you can see is darkness.

This is a real-life scenario for divers who are part of the FBI's Underwater Search and Evidence Response Team (USERT). They must be able to conduct underwater searches in all kinds of conditions, often regardless of visibility, temperature, and pollution. Proper diving gear and attire, as well as collaboration with other teams, are key for diver safety, and underwater search tools and evidence collection protocol help ensure successful search and recovery operations.

Gearing Up for a Dive
USERT divers wear specialized gear to help them maneuver underwater and to keep open lines of communication with their colleagues on the surface during an operation.

"We typically dive with full-face masks, which allow two-way communication between team members above and below the surface," said Supervisory Special Agent and USERT Program Manager Brain Hudson. For additional

Impersonation

Carroll Davenport, 26, Utica Circle Oak Ridge, was charged with Resisting Arrest, Criminal Impersonation, and Assisting other Agency.

Deputy Watson LCSO, was patrolling in Melton Hill Park when he observed a silver Honda sedan parked at the overlook. Deputy approached the vehicle and observed the suspect asleep in the front seat of the vehicle. Deputy made contact with the suspect and he first stated that his name was "Joe Newman".

The suspect stated he had no middle name and that he did not know his social security number. While speaking to the Deputy, the suspect kept pausing before answering his basic information.

Deputy asked the male to exit the vehicle and Deputy attempted to detain the suspect for officer safety due to the suspicion he was giving false information. When Deputy placed his hand around the suspects left wrist, he pulled it away from him and resisted Deputy placing it behind him. Deputy ordered the male to stop resisting and to give him his other hand several times before he complied.

The suspect also attempted to turn around toward the Deputy while he tried to place him into cuffs. Deputy was able to detain the suspect and he secured him in his patrol vehicle. While securing him inside the vehicle, he gave Deputy his correct name and date of birth and his social security number.

The suspect stated that his name was Carroll Davenport (Offender/Arrestee) and that he was wanted by the Oak Ridge Police Department.

Dispatch confirmed that Mr. Davenport was wanted for Failure to Appear. Due to training and experience, Deputy believe that Mr. Davenport gave him false information to avoid being arrested for his warrant out of Anderson County.

Deputy transported Mr. Davenport to the Loudon County Jail without further incident. This did occur in Loudon County, TN.

Benjamin Davidson, 31, Cory Drive Lenoir City, was charged with Man/Sell/Del/Resale Sch. II, Poss. Of a Firearm, and Financial Responsibility.

Officer T. LaForce LCSO, was patrolling on Hwy 321 N, did observe a tan truck bearing TN tag (579BJQG) traveling North bound, with a head light out on the passenger side. Officer did initiate a traffic stop on the above vehicle at 300 Market Dr, Lenoir City TN, at the Food City Gas and Go parking lot. Officer made contact with the male driver who was identified to be Benjamin

Adam Davidson. Officer observed 2 handguns laying under the center console near Mr. Davidsons right thigh. Due to officer safety, Officer asked Mr. Davidson to step out to continue the traffic stop. Officer Parmer did observe a black scale on top of the passenger seat in plain view, Mr. Davidson was asked if he would retrieve his scale out of his vehicle, and he did give consent, he did admit at one time there was marijuana weighed on the scale and residue of green like leaves were found on the scale. Officer Law did pat Mr. Davidson down for officer safety due to him having multiple firearms in the vehicle. Officer Law did feel what was believed to be a pipe in his right front pant pocket, he did agree it was a meth pipe. A probable cause search was then conducted, finding another glass pipe, known to be used to smoke elicited narcotics with, in the center console and a baggie in a cigarette pack that was a white crystal-like substance weighing to be 1.24grams, with my training and experiences to be methamphetamine.

A total of 3 firearms were found in the vehicle Springfield Armory 9mm S3640877 XD S, Glock 45 9mm BLHK538, and Glock 45 9mm BZEM777. The truck was checked through dispatch for insurance, dispatch verified there was no insurance on the vehicle and no proof could be determined. Mr. Davidson was placed in custody and transported to the Loudon County Jail.

The Lenoir City Utilities (LCUB) has cancelled its Board Meeting scheduled for Monday, April 17, 2023. The next regularly scheduled Board Meeting will be Monday, May 15, 2023, at 4:00 p.m. and will be held at LCUB in the Hamby-Smith Memorial Board Room located at 7698 Creekwood Park Blvd., Lenoir City, TN. 37772.

Charged
Darrell Westfall, 52, Jackson Bend Road Lenoir City, was charged with Mfg/Sel/Sale or Poss. Of Meth, and Public Intoxication.

Officer Parmer LCPD, was dispatched to Kenjo, 1104 Hwy 321 N, in regards to one of the employees possibly being under the influence of either a narcotic or alcohol. The complainant advised central dispatch that the employee had locked himself in the office and had thrown items all over.

Upon arrival, the Officer made contact with the complainant, who advised that the employee was inside the store. The Officer went inside and made contact with the male in question, identified as 52-year-old Darrell Westfall.

While speaking with Mr. Westfall, the Officer observed him to be unsteady on his feet, having a dry and foaming mouth, unable to make a coherent sentence, and falling asleep while standing up.

Due to Mr. Westfall being a danger to himself, he was placed into custody. While searching Mr. Westfall's person, Officer located a clear "dime" bag which contained approximately 1.47 grams of a crystal-like substance suspected to be Methamphetamine. When asked about the suspected Methamphetamine, Mr. Westfall informed the Officer that he had smoked, using a glass pipe, prior to our arrival.

Mr. Westfall was then transported to Loudon County Jail without further incident. The above did occur in Lenoir City, Loudon County, Tennessee.

insulation as well as head protection when overhead obstacles are present, divers wear steel Kirby Morgan Superlite 77 helmets, which weigh over 30 pounds on land.

Waterproof dry suits are designed to keep the divers warm in cold water and protect against pollution and other unpleasant water conditions that could present health and safety risks. The suits usually cover the head, body, and feet. "We try to keep as much dirty water off the divers as we can," said Hudson. "Your dry suit and full-face mask or helmet will keep you protected, so really, the only part—hopefully—that's going to get wet is your hands."

When diving in icy conditions, divers wear additional dry suit layers for warmth. However, keeping the head and hands warm is the biggest challenge. "If it's cold water or ice diving, you're still going to lose your hand dexterity over time," said Hudson. "There's only so much you can do to keep your hands warm, even with additional dry gloves. Your head also gets cold."

On land, the FBI's Technical Hazardous Response Unit (THRU) helps USERT set up ZUMRO tents (air-inflatable shelter systems) with heaters to give divers a place to dress and warm up after a dive. "We also keep several turkey fryers going with warm water so divers can dip their arms in there and pour on gear to keep the gear from freezing on the surface," said Hudson.

In contrast, when it's warm, USERT and THRU set up shade tents to help keep the divers cool, ensuring there is plenty of drinking water available to maintain hydration as well as electrolyte packets to mix in for extra sustenance.

Safety Measures: Collaborating with the FBI's Technical Hazardous Response Unit (THRU) and Operational Medicine Program

tion with other teams to ensure efficient and safe dives. As a result, there have been no serious injuries to USERT divers thus far.

"One of our great benefits of USERT is that we work really close with THRU and the Operational Medicine Program within the Bureau," said Hudson. "We have paramedics in the field who have gotten special training in dive medicine. They are DMTs, or dive medicine technicians, which is an extra-level certification. When we deploy on missions and trainings, we always have one or two medical staff who specifically specialize in dive accidents and medicine."

In addition to medical support, THRU helps USERT with operational tasks, including setting up auxiliary equipment and resources, like setting up heating tents for ice dives or clearing heavy underbrush to pave the way to the water's edge.

Underwater Obstacles

Beneath the surface, divers must be aware of potential challenges that could arise while on the job.

Decompression sickness is a risk in both recreation and in search and recovery diving—during a rapid transition from a high- to low-pressure environment, gas bubbles in the body form and may cause joint pain, difficulty breathing, chest pain, paralysis, and confusion. The consequences could be fatal.

To mitigate this risk, divers follow protocols and schedules created by the U.S. Navy that designate how long divers can stay underwater at certain depths and control their ascent rate up to the water's surface. Divers also conduct all dives with at least one dive medical technician and paramedic present.

"Our divers have to contend with all sorts of underwater environments—for example, fallen or sunken trees or tall underwater vegetation, as well as man-made items like fishing line, razor wire, trash, and other items that end up in the water," said Hudson.

"We attempt to mitigate these hazards in a couple of ways. All divers carry multiple cutting devices, so that they can attempt to free themselves. Our teams will periodically conduct entanglement training. In the event that they cannot free themselves or if other issues arise, our divers typically dive with surface-supplied air and communication devices so they can notify the dive supervisor, and we can send another diver to assist. This also means they won't run out of air if they're stuck underwater."

Sometimes divers also encounter animals that aren't necessarily easy to swim with. "Our Florida team frequently deals with gators," said Hudson. "We also did a dive in Alaska where we had to scrub the leaches off of the dry suits that the divers picked up underwater."

Horoscopes

working out at the gym. Take a good book to read in the sauna, because you will also want the mental stimulation. At the end of the day you will feel good about yourself and ready to overindulge some more!

Taurus 4/20-5/20

A memory, dream, vision, or meditation could trigger a rush of spiritual energy, Taurus. As a result, you might want to jot your experiences down so you won't forget them. Try not to dwell on it too much. This isn't the time to be reclusive! The process won't stop. The insights should continue to come. Keep up your studies and meditation and you will go on growing indefinitely.

Gemini 5/21-6/20

A message from a friend could make your day, Gemini. The good news may involve travel, money, or a love relationship. There could also be an intellectual matter that you're anxious to look into, perhaps for the purpose of writing or teaching. A journey, possibly related to education, could be in the offing, perhaps with friends. A busy and stimulating day is definitely ahead.

Cancer 6/21-7/22

The planetary energy leaves you in a contemplative mood, Cancer. A lot of different possibilities have opened up for you recently, and you're trying to figure out which is the most appropriate now. Sometimes it's better to let things chum around in your subconscious for a while, and this could be one of those times. Forget it for now and have fun.

Leo 7/23-8/22

Talk of traveling to distant and exotic places could come up at a gathering of family and friends, Leo. Some of the talk is pure fantasy, but there are a few people among you who are genuinely serious about their plans. Are you considering going away for a while? If so, you might listen to what your friends have to say. It would certainly be fun if all of you went together!

Virgo 8/23-9/22

Career matters may be put on hold for a few days, Virgo, but your professional future probably won't be far from your thoughts, even in the midst of time spent with family and friends. You want to improve your financial situation, and a number of possibilities have come up. Don't mull them over too much now. You don't want to neglect your loved ones. Relax and enjoy their company today.

Libra 9/23-10/22

So many fascinating ideas have come your way over the past few days that your mind is spinning. Some of what you've heard could be so radical that it will take some time to make sense of it. You could also want to memorialize your thoughts, perhaps by making some notes or writing an article. Watching TV might get your mind off it all and help you relax a little. Go to it!

Scorpio 10/23-11/21

A deep, intimate conversation could take place today between you and a romantic interest, Scorpio. If this is a casual relationship, it may suddenly become more. If you're involved but not committed, you could reach an understanding. If you're already committed, there may even be talk of marriage. The end result of this conversation should be happiness for both of you. Celebrate tonight at home.

Sagittarius

11/22-12/21

This morning you may wake up from a dream with many inspiring new ideas. If you're into creative activity of any kind, you will want to jot these ideas down, as well as possibilities for bringing them to the rest of the world. This could be through music, painting, writing, or any kind of art form. Don't be surprised if your style changes a little.

If nothing else, this demonstrates versatility!

Capricorn 12/22-01/19

A few extra things need to be done around the house today, Capricorn. A few more letters need to be written, a few more cleaning chores should be done, and you might still want to dress the place up a little. Your mood is very positive, and you should speed through these tasks with little energy drain. You will have plenty left for socializing tonight.

Aquarius 1/20-2/18

Children may be a part of your day today, Aquarius. You might attend a party for children or a larger gathering that includes them. At some point you might even be telling them a story. This will probably be as much fun for you as for your audience, who are likely to be very appreciative. Don't be afraid to ham it up a little - they'll love it!

Pisces 2/19-3/20

Books that you may have received as gifts could have you thinking deeply about spiritual or philosophical matters today, Pisces. Your mind is quicker than usual, so you can probably grasp some rather complex ideas. Your practical side could bring up doubts as to the applicability of what you're learning, but don't worry about that. This should become clear to you eventually.
